Dr. Jerry Chambers, a veteran educator in the DISD school system, and member of the Martin Luther King Center board of trustees is leading a program honoring the world's greatest civil rights leader on Friday, April 4th at the MLK Jr. Community Center in South Dallas 2922 MLK Blvd. Dallas, Texas 75215.

Dr. Chambers, was the lead organizer of the recent trip that took 30 public school children to civil rights sites in the south, is delivering the last speech given by Dr. King before he was assassinated on April 4th, 1968 at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tennessee.

"This speech is important because it was the last one given by a man who gave his life for all people," said Dr. Chambers during an exclusive interview at the offices of the Dallas Post Tribune on Tuesday. "Mrs. Rosa Parks sat on a bus so that Dr. King would walk. Dr. King walked so that President Obama could run. President Obama ran so that the children of the day could fly," said Chambers, who was a high school teacher at Booker T. Washington in Dallas when news reached the city that Dr. King had been shot.

Dr. Chambers, a graduate of Mississippi Valley State College, intends to lead another delegation of students to the South. Among those who contributed to the expenses for the student's first trip were Dallas Congresswoman Eddie Bernice Johnson, and Dallas City Councilwoman Carolyn Davis.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA SORORITY, INCORPORATED® OMICRON MU OMEGA CHAPTER HONORS DR. FREDERICK D. HAYNES, III AT IMAGE AWARD LUNCHEON

It has been said that image is everything; but for leaders like Dr. Frederick D. Haynes, III, action is everything. This is why Dallas' Omicron Mu Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha SorORITY, Incorporated has chosen to honor Dr. Haynes. He will receive the 2014 Image Award at the sorority's scholarship luncheon Saturday, April 5, 2014, at the Hilton Anatole. The luncheon, presented by the Legacy of Service Foundation, begins at 12 noon and tickets are $75. Attendees will enjoy special entertainment from Dallas Black Dance Theatre, who has created new dance works for this event themed "An Afternoon in Harlem."

Dr. Haynes is the Senior Pastor of the Friendship-West Baptist Church in Dallas. In his 31 years of service to his congregation, the membership has grown to nearly 12,000. Pastor Haynes leads with a commitment to Christ, passion for people and yearning for community transformation. As an active champion for social change, Dr. Haynes serves on the Board of Directors of the National Action Network, Conference of National Black Churches, Paul Quinn College, and was a committee member for the MLK Memorial Foundation, leading to the erection of the first African American Monument on the Washington D.C. Mall. In 2012, EBONY Magazine listed him in their "Power 100" of the nation's most influential African Americans. "Pastor Haynes is committed to service, scholarship and social justice," states Cynthia Robinson-Hawkins, President of the Omicron Mu Omega Chapter. "These are some of the same aims of Alpha Kappa Alpha SorORITY, Incorporated. It is an honor for us to celebrate him at our Image Award luncheon for the significant contributions he has made in the community."

The Legacy of Service Foundation began as the Omicron Mu Omega Foundation in 1993, to provide scholarships and support service projects in the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex. The Legacy of Service Foundation awards scholarships annually to college bound students in DFW and supports activities and service projects that seek to improve the quality of life within the community. Proceeds from the luncheon are used to support these efforts. Last year, 11 students received scholarships totaling $21,000.

Image Award Luncheon sponsors are The Church Without Walls, IMessenger, Texas Metro News, Garland Journal, Boy Scouts of America, WRR 101.1 FM, Won't He Do It, and Mountain View College.

DEAR EDITOR:

Dear Editor,

A series of long-running studies have identified a troubling racial gap in breast cancer mortality rates. Research suggests that African-American women are on average 40 percent more likely to die from breast cancer than Caucasian women.

The findings are jarring for all women, since we all have a vested interest in defeating breast cancer together. I, too, am considered high-risk and reducing that risk is important to me. That's one of the reasons I'm vegan.

According to Dr. Jane Plant, a British scientist, cancer survivor, and author of The No-Dairy Breast Cancer Prevention Program, "Undoubtedly, the best anti-cancer diet would be to go completely vegan." Meat and dairy products are full of cholesterol, saturated fat, excess protein, hormones, and other harmful substances that increase breast cancer risk. But a vegan diet maximizes intake of foods that help us fight cancer—fiber-packed grains and beans and phytochemical-packed fruits and vegetables.

I intend to arm myself against breast cancer with every weapon I've got. Going vegan is one of the best decisions I've made, and I hope other women will join me. For a free vegetarian/vegan starter kit, please visit www.PETA.org.

Sincerely,
Michelle Kretzer

THE IMPORTANCE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY RESEARCH

By Congresswoman Eddie Bernice Johnson

The House Committee on Science, Space and Technology was established in 1957. Two years later, the Committee became the first new permanent legislative panel established in the U.S. House of Representatives since 1892. Initially, the Committee was primarily focused on space exploration.

Over the years, the Committee's areas of concern have grown to encompass much of our country's federal scientific research and development, including, space exploration, basic research, energy research and development, environmental research and development. Marine research, technological standards, civil aviation research and development, advanced manufacturing, and math and science education are also among the issues that the Committee deals with.

I am the senior Democrat on the Committee which has a membership in which Republicans are in the majority. As such, I am referred to as the "Ranking Member" on the panel. In that capacity, I have been fortunate to communicate with a wide-range of representatives from industry, academia, and government. Nearly all of them are in agreement that investing in research and development, innovation, and education are absolutely essential to the maintenance of a strong economy, and an improved quality of life in future years.

The choice facing our nation is a critical one. Either we make investments in research and development as well as innovation that will lead to job creation and a better quality of life at present, and in the future, or we will spiral down the path of arbitrary and short-sighted cuts to America's science and technology enterprise, and the science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) educational activities that support it. Our children and our grandchildren will suffer if we fail to pursue the correct direction.

It is estimated that more than 50 percent of our economic growth since World War II is the result of the adoption and development of new technologies. The path is simple. Research and education lead to innovation which leads to economic development, good paying jobs and revenue to support additional research. Additionally, as private firms resist investing sufficiently in research and development, due to distant financial returns, there is a clear and necessary role for government to ensure that our nation keeps abreast with technology and the scientific advances of other countries.

While our world-class innovation infrastructure is under stress, our competitors in other countries, even as they institute austerity measures in their budgets, are seizing the opportunity to make strategic investments in long-term basic research, and are building and supporting public-private partnership to support research and development that results in present and future job creation.

It is during periods of economic uncertainty that we should increase our efforts to innovate our way into a brighter future that includes new jobs, new technologies, and a better quality of life for all our citizens.

In 2007, the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology passed bipartisan, landmark legislation based upon recommendations from the 2005 National Academies' report entitled "Rising Above the Gathering Storm." The report, developed by experts from one of our nation's leading science and technology think tanks, was a wake-up call to many members of Congress.

Buy Black: An Economic Empowerment Strategy

Black-owned firms. Behind this consumption are billions of dollars in business contracts, business growth, advertising revenue, entrepreneurial opportunity and economic empowerment that, while driven by Black consumer spending, are not empowering the Black community."

Enough, I feel ya!
Anderson says we have not harnessed our $1 trillion a year spending power because our civic and religious leaders, unlike Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., are unwilling to exhort our community to "Buy Black."

In his last speech, Dr. King said: "...We've gotten to strengthen our Black institutions. I call upon you to take your money out of the [White] banks downtown and deposit your money in Tri-State Bank. We want a bank-in movement in Memphis... We have six or seven Black insurance companies in Memphis. Take out your insurance there. We want to have an 'insurance-in." He explained: "We begin the process of building a greater economic base. And at the same time, we are putting pressure where it really hurts."

Anderson wrote, "While 'buying Black' is at least as old as Emancipation, 'buying Black' has not been a highlight of the modern, post-Civil Rights era struggle for economic empowerment, much less a noticeable movement or public approach embraced by our community's institutions, professional and civic organizations, universities, or churches."

The rich irony is that our business organizations are demanding that federal and local governments award at least 10 percent of public contracts to Black businesses, yet we won't spend 10 percent of our outlays with those same businesses.

"According to the landmark Northwestern University's Kellogg Business School study based on The Empowerment Experiment, out of close to $1 trillion in Black spending power, maybe 3 percent of that goes to Black professionals, suppliers and firms," Anderson wrote. "But if Black households with annual income of $75,000 or more—middle and upper income African Americans—were to increase spending with Black professionals and firms from 3 percent to just 10 percent, we could create close to 1,000,000 jobs."

She explained, "This 10 percent includes direct spending with local Black-owned businesses, as well as indirect spending through the support of Black vendors, agents, dealers and franchises of mainstream firms. The new jobs would be created from the money we already have and currently spend—no government program and no corporate social responsibility outlay necessary."

Some African Americans, especially those who like to romanticize about Black life under Jim Crow, like to say Blacks were more willing to support Black businesses in the past because of segregation. But like goods in a White-owned store, Anderson isn't buying.

"Segregation did not compel the ingenuity, intelligence, and investment that created those businesses [North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, Black Wall Street, Madam C.J. Walker's hair products] nor did unjust laws force Black people to believe in each other," Anderson stated. "To accept that the viability of a consumer-driven economic empowerment strategy depends on segregation or oppression of a community is to fall prey to the notion that the Black community must be forced into greatness... On the contrary, I believe we can bring back the economic empowerment that sustained the Black community before and until integration."

To do that, however, we need to leverage modern-day technology. "It is now easier than ever before to learn about, mobilize, seek and support Black-owned businesses," Anderson wrote. "Therefore, technology enables us to involve consumers in an economic empowerment strategy by educating, inspiring and facilitating their practice of self-help economics."

Now, does she have your attention?

By George E. Curry
NNPA Columnist

Margarita "Maggie" Anderson wants to transform "Buy Black" from a leftover 1960s slogan to a modern economic empowerment strategy. And because she has lived it, there is no person better qualified to lead the charge.

Anderson and her family spent all of 2009 purchasing goods and services exclusively from Black merchants. She is author of a book cataloging her experience titled, Our Black Year. She also authored an essay in the State of Black America report issued Thursday by the National Urban League titled, "Facts vs. Fiction: Buying Black as an Economic Empowerment Strategy."

Like the farmer trying to get his mule's attention, Anderson whacks us across the head in the National Urban League report with two disturbing facts.

Fact #1: "...Most of the products and services African Americans consume—Black media and entertainment, Black dating websites, Black hair and skin care, Black toys, and Black fashion—are neither produced nor distributed by finances and start saving as early as possible to keep from making the same money mistakes their parents and grandparents made.

First and foremost, be very careful with those student loans. Leaving school with a debt of tens of thousands of dollars, even before you get a job, is a prescription for financial disaster. I know the money is great to have, especially what some of you call your "monthly check," which is in excess of what your tuition requires. But you will have to pay it back no matter what, with interest, of course. Imagine trying to find and keep a job, a car, a place to live, and food to eat, while having to pay a monthly note of $400-$600 for a student loan for the next 20 or 30 years! When you get old you may also end up in the group with less than $1,000 saved for retirement.

Keep in mind that a college education, while it is very important and necessary in this economy, is not worth what it used to be. Thus, it would be prudent to forego that high-priced school you want to attend and consider a smaller community college, a tech school, or an HBCU. Unless you get a scholarship that covers most or all of your costs, a smaller less expensive school is the way to go.

I know most young people refuse to acknowledge it, but if you keep living you will get old. Question: "What will getting old cost you?" Getting old in today's economy is very expensive. And who knows what will happen to Social Security and Medicare? The way things are going now, young people will be pretty much on their own when they get old.

It's best to get a Roth IRA started now, or at least some kind of savings plan that will multiply and be there at retirement. (A few dollars saved each month now will multiply into hundreds of thousands or even a million dollars by the time you reach retirement age.) Don't put all your eggs in one basket by simply depending on your employer's contribution to your 401-K and insurance plan. Unless you "own" the job you have, it can be taken away from you at any time, along with your retirement plan and your insurance policy.

Understand, young people, that if a young athlete or entertainer can go broke after making unwise decisions with his or her millions of dollars, your $80,000 per year will evaporate at a much faster pace, especially if you try to live like they live. Be smart, learn from the mistakes of others, and understand that you do not have to end up like the current 36 percent in this country.

The other caveat for young people as they prepare for their retirement is the dreaded conspicuous consumption syndrome. In an article I wrote some years ago, titled, "Supply and Demand," I noted that Black folks demand and others supply us with their goods and services. Anything someone makes we will buy it, no matter how much it costs. Just look at Nick Young of the L. A. Lakers who recently had his home burglarized for a pair of $6,000 shoes called "Nike Air Yeezy 2." That reminded me of basketball star, Antoine Walker, getting robbed of a $55,000 watch.

A great article on this subject is featured on The Root website, written by Demetria L. Lucas, titled, "Fronting: We Need to Stop Living the 'Fabulous and Broke' Lifestyle. It's time to put the 'fake it till you make it' philosophy out to pasture." She wrote, "My wake-up call came...when my friend called me in a panic, not knowing what to do. He was around $30,000 in credit card debt and had student loans. That friend ended up moving back in with his parents for a year-plus so he could save money to pay off his credit cards. (More than 10 years later, he's still paying off student loans.)"

The cost of getting old is high—be prepared.

By James Clingman
NNPA Columnist

We are at a critical stage in the economy when "more than one-third of workers (36%) have a measly $1,000 saved for their later years," according to a study by the Employee Benefit Research Institute. "Compare that to the 28% of workers who said they had $1,000 saved in last year's survey, and the picture gets a little more grim," the article continued. The report refers to all workers; that 36 percent likely skyrockets when applied to Black people. You know what happens when America gets a cold—we get pneumonia.

With baby boomers at the head of the mortality line, all we can do now is reflect on the financial "what ifs" in our lives and try to figure out how to live with a $1,000.00 or less in the bank. The millennial generation had better pay close attention to their uncertain, it does not negate the fact that God has indeed blessed His people with abundant blessings. In reading this psalm, I feel the urge to join the psalmist in Psalm 106:1-2, 48 as he exclaims: "Praise ye the Lord. O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good: for His mercy endureth for ever. Who can utter the mighty acts of the Lord? Who can shew forth all His praise? Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting" and let all the people say, Amen. Praise ye the Lord.

David begins this psalm with praise as he proclaims, "I praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion: and unto thee shall the vow be performed. O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come" (vv. 1-2). David extols the Lord, for the Lord heard his prayer and forgave people's transgressions (vv. 3-4). Not only does David praise God for His redemption, but in verses 5-8, he praises God for His mighty acts in creation: "Which by His strength setteth fast the mountains; being girded with power: Which stilleth the noise of the seas, the noise of their waves, and the tumult of the people" vv. 6-7).

Because of the Lord's abundant blessings on the land, nature shouts for joy (vv. 9-13). David sites this evidence of the Lord's provision, "The pastures are clothed with flocks; the valleys also are covered over with corn; they shout for joy, they also sing" (v. 13). Yes, we need to praise God every day of our existence for His bountiful blessings, as the psalmist in Psalm 34:1-4 affirms: "I will bless the Lord at all times: His praise shall continually be in my mouth. My soul shall make here boast in the Lord: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt His name together. I sought the Lord, and He heard me, and delivered me from all my fears."

May God Bless!

A Little Bit of Faith: : Stay Focused on Spiritual Things

If you are having a difficult time keeping your mind steadfast on spiritual things, you are not alone. Most people find it difficult or nearly impossible to do. However, the Bible suggests that a person who is spiritually minded will have peace and life. In the book of Romans it says, "To be spiritually minded is life and peace" (Romans 8:6).

When we learn how to delight ourselves in the Word of God, then we are moving in the right direction. Once we learn how to find joy in scripture, we begin to live a spirit-filled controlled life. This means that we are not allowing our thoughts to control us; rather we are controlling our thoughts. By allowing the scripture to work in our being, we are allowing the Holy Spirit to move in us.

Our character is molded by the things we do. Thus, staying focused on the Word of God will help us to stay focused on our Heavenly Father. Righteousness that is deep in our hearts will also produce strong character in us. As we move through this week, let us be reminded that we are to keep our minds focused on spiritual things. Can you do that this week? I know I will try. Amen. Amen.

VIRGO

This is a good time for you to seek agreement on a plan that involves a relative. Take the time to remind your lover how much you care. Get a little sentimental if you have to. Don't be too critical of that softer side of your personality.
Soul Affirmation: Self confidence is the key to my success this week.
Lucky Numbers: 2, 9, 19

LIBRA

You've made your point. Now wait. Wait for the feedback about the impact it had on the people around you. Be careful of those who don't celebrate with you. They feel the impact and are resisting the positive effects.

Soul Affirmation: Before goodness can come I must expect goodness.
Lucky Numbers: 5, 16, 23

SCORPIO

Be sharp! All of your needs will be met in indirect ways. Gifts will come from unexpected sources. They will be carefully packaged to go unnoticed. Unwrap everything and look inside. There will be empty boxes, but there will also be a prize in an unanticipated situation.
Soul Affirmation: I look for the good in all that comes to me this week.
Lucky Numbers: 3, 10, 41

SAGITTARIUS

Push. Now is a good time to push. Your energy is higher than ever. Someone might get offended, but you can't please everyone. Hire a pro for something that you planned to do yourself, especially if a expertise is involved.
Soul Affirmation: Success is mine because I feel successful.
Lucky Numbers: 5, 7, 12

CAPRICORN

Review your "to do" list again. You may need to slow down to discover something that you didn't realize while you were in the flow of events. Your lover is going to be a little difficult to understand.
Soul Affirmation: To live is to love
Lucky Numbers: 5, 16, 23

AQUARIUS

Back off if an argument arises. You're probably the one who is too busy. Forgiving yourself is often harder than getting someone else to forgive you. Go easy on yourself Soul Affirmation: Two hats fit well on my big head.
Lucky Numbers: 3, 20, 32

PISCES

Make a special effort to spend all week with your lover, husband or wife. Your sense of the importance of relationships is keen and this is a good time to strengthen your passionate partnership. Take your lover to a party. Devote attention.

BROWN ESTATE - UNCORKED IN METRO DALLAS!

Napa Valley Winery Leads Select Group of Vintners Featuring Taint-Free

When a bottle of wine is "corked" -- or found to be spoiled -- the culprit is usually a tainted cork. Often, but not always, the odor is described as smelling like a wet dog, damp basement or even a moldy newspaper. Usually, the wine is undrinkable. Even the most expensive wines are susceptible, and a "corked" bottle of wine has been the bane of many a winemaker's existence for centuries.

Chardonnay (250 cases), 2012 Petite Sirah (425 cases) and 2010 Cabernet Sauvignon (400 cases). All of these wines will be released in 2014.
 The Napa Valley Zinfandel, Chaos Theory, and Cabernet Sauvignon were released in February to retail outlets and restaurants in Texas and other US markets. These wines are available directly to consumers through the winery's website. The single vineyard zinfandels are sold exclusively through the winery, as is their $125-a-bottle Brown Recluse reserve Cabernet/Zinfandel blend (150 cases). The 2012 Chardonnay and reserve 2011 Recluse Zinfandel (150 cases) will be released only to Brown Estate wine club members.

In metro Dallas, a Napa Valley winery, Brown Estate, is offering taint-free corks in all of its wines. Partnering with Cork Supply USA, pioneers of an extensive cork inspection process, each individual cork is placed in a vial glass container with two drops of added pure HPLC-grade water. After 24 hours, testers sniff each cork, one by one, for off-aromas, thereby ensuring no tainted corks reach the winery. The result: every bad cork was discovered and discarded prior to the bottling of all 2012 vintage Brown Estate wines.

She estimated less than 50 wineries participate in the program.

According to winemaker David Brown, "This approach has significantly minimized the problem of bad corks, well below any level we have achieved before. Knowing that we can offer our clients delicious wines with reliable corks gives us peace of mind."

For his part, Brown spoke passionately about his craft. "Winemaking is truly a labor of love. From the planting phase through the harvesting of the grapes, leading to the bottling and aging process - each step is carefully tendered and painstakingly monitored. The cork must do its part to ensure the integrity of the process and the wine."

Brown's signature Zinfandel and Chardonnay are often found on the Wine Lists of prestigious restaurants from New York to California. Primary examples are the locations of famed restaurateur Thomas Keller, who operates The French Laundry, and Bouchon in Yountville, CA., as well as Per Se, and a second Bouchon in New York City. Inclusion on these internationally-known restaurant's Wine Lists means an available bottle of Brown Estate wine has passed the test of an exceptional Sommelier and Thomas Keller.

These wines are available on the wine lists at top Dallas restaurants and caterers such as Del Frisco's Double Eagle Steak House, Sky Canyon by Stephen Pyles, the catering group of famed Chef Wolfgang Puck's, and Citrus Bistro, where partner Jean Loup Schyns describes the 2010 bottle of Chaos Theory as "memorable and delicious." Dallas-area retail outlets include Spec's Liquor, Goody Goody Liquor and PK's Fine Wines & Spirits. D & E Fine Wine Group, based in suburban Dallas, represents the boutique Napa Valley winery throughout Texas.

Brown Estate's production during 2013 (primarily 2012 vintage wines) topped 8,000 cases, including their signature Napa Valley estate Zinfandel (2,100 cases) and four single vineyard estate Zinfandels - Mickey's Block, Rosemary's Block, Westside, and Chiles Valley (700 cases each)-- and their 2012 Chaos Theory Zinfandel/Cabernet/Petite Sirah blend (1,400 cases), 2012

Owned and managed by the Brown Family, the boutique winery is located in the mountainous Sage Canyon area of Napa Valley, 14 miles east of downtown St. Helena. For additional information on Brown Estate, visit www.brownestate.com or call the winery at (707) 963-2435. When planning a trip to Napa Valley, visitors may call ahead to reserve a tour and wine tasting at Brown Estate.

COACH AVERY JOHNSON INSPIRES DALLAS CAN ACADEMY STUDENTS

Avery Johnson, former NBA player and Dallas Mavericks head coach, captivated students at the Ross Avenue Dallas Can Academy campus last week with his very personal story of growing up in the projects of New Orleans and professional sports success. Johnson visits schools as a part of Just Say YES (Youth Equipped to Succeed), a Richardson-based nonprofit organization bringing motivational and inspirational programs and speakers to schools.

The assembly was held at the Ross Avenue Dallas Can Academies campus with a group of about 200 students. Johnson talked about academic focus, overcoming obstacles, showing respect for others and striving for excellence in every aspect of life. Johnson drove home advice about choosing "who you hang out with" wisely and used his own analogy, "Don't hang with parked cars, because they don't go anywhere."

"This was a nice treat for our students. The impact Coach Avery is making in the lives of youth is powerful," said Rawly Sanchez, principal of Dallas Can Academy Ross Avenue.

Just Say YES programs are customized for the specific needs of the individual school/organization and have been conducted in 38 states, reaching more than 500,000 students, parents and educators.

Affordable Care Act

March 31 Deadline Will be Given an Extension

The open enrollment period to sign up for a health insurance plan through the Affordable Care Act's marketplaces officially ended on Monday.

More than 6 million Americans have already signed up for insurance coverage through online "marketplaces" created by the law, federal officials said on Thursday.

Earlier last week, the Obama administration said that Americans who've started applying for health insurance but can't complete the process by the March 31 deadline will be given an extension.

Administration officials said the extension was being offered partly out of concern that the federal online registration website, Healthcare.gov, could become overwhelmed as last-minute registrants scrambled to meet the original March 31 deadline or face a penalty in the form of a tax. And that seemed to be the case early Monday morning as the website struggled with high user traffic. Some visitors to HealthCare.gov were met with messages that the site was down for maintenance. At times, visitors were sent to a virtual waiting room -- a feature created to ease the strain on the site during periods of heavy demand, the Associated Press reported.

FUNERAL HOMES

Five big reasons to consider Black & Clark Funeral Home

- 1. We work harder to earn your business. We can't afford to provide anything less than impeccable service, or to leave you with less than the best impression possible.
- 2. You're not just our client, you're our boss. We don't lose sight of who we're working for. After all, you're the one we answer to.
- 3. We arrange funerals, we don't sell them. It is our responsibility to honor your wishes and respect your budget.
- 4. We like meeting families, not goals. Like you, we are a part of this community supporting our neighbors when they need us.
- 5. We spend time with you. Arranging a fitting tribute is important to you, and you don't deserve to be rushed.
