SERVING THE BLACK COMMUNITY WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR SINCE 1947

August 2 - 8, 2018

BETO FOR SENATE

U.S. Congressman Beto O'Rourke is a fourth generation Texan, husband, father of three and proud Democrat running to represent all 28 million people in Texas.

He's fighting to ensure that our children have access to high quality education, that new families are able to know the feeling of homeownership, that our workforce is strengthened, that young entrepreneurs have access to capital to build their business and not redlined out of the economy, because every Texan deserves an opportunity to live their version of the American dream with dignity and respect.

REFORMING THE JUSTICE SYSTEM TOGETHER

We need a criminal justice system Texans can trust. We can end mass incarceration by decriminalizing marijuana, ending mandatory minimums, and getting for-profit prisons out of our justice system. Let's stop the school-to-prison pipeline that funnels our children into jails and not colleges, provide meaningful reentry and expungement opportunities for the formerly incarcerated, and reform the broken bail bond system that punishes the poor.

PREPARING OUR STUDENTS, EQUIPPING OUR TEACHERS

Every single child

deserves access to a high-quality education from pre-K onward. We must keep public school funding with public schools, and empower our teachers so that they can teach to students and not a standardized test. We need to increase funding for Pell Grants, and invest in community colleges, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and other job training programs.

INVESTING IN ALL COMMUNITIES, ALL PEOPLE

Our economy should work for everyone. We must ensure every Texan who wants a job can find one that pays above a living wage, and that small business owners can access capital to create those jobs. Let's also support our families by expanding paid family and sick leave, affordable child care, and homeownership.

GUARANTEEING HEALTHCARE FOR ALL

Every Texan should be able to see a doctor, afford their prescriptions, and get the care they need. We must fight to reduce the high maternal mortality rate in Texas and ensure our new mothers are healthy. Let's lower prescription drug costs, protect the Affordable Care Act against current attacks, finally expand Medicaid, and achieve guaranteed quality universal health care.

Criminal Justice Reform

- The United States incarcerates a larger proportion of its citizens than any other country in the world, most of whom are African American and Hispanic

- By the age of 14, 1 out of 4 African American children have experienced a parent being imprisoned.

- Texas operates America's largest prison system

- African Americans and Hispanics account for 66% of Texas' inmate population

- We have to address imbalances in our criminal justice system:

- End War on Drugs

- End mandatory minimums for minor drug offenses and decriminalize marijuana

- End the current system of cash bail that punishes the poor

- Break the cycle of incarceration by providing an environment that welcomes recently incarcerated individuals back into society

- Improving community and law enforcement relations with more officers that reflect the community they are serving and de-escalation trainings

Economic Empowerment

- White families have 10 times more wealth than African American families

- We must invest in African American communities. We do so by:

- supporting African American small business owners

- eliminating racial employment barriers (African Americans are 2 times more unemployed than Whites in Texas)

- growing workforce development programs

- promoting affordable homeownership -- a path to wealth for many families

High Quality Education

- A child's zip code should not determine their academic future

- Every child deserves quality education, in student-centered environments that allow them to reach their God given potential

- For pre-K through 12th grade: Increase funding for public schools, and dismantle the school-to-prison pipeline

- For higher education: Increase funding for HBCUs and expand Pell grants which can help black students not leave saddled with debt

Affordable Health Care

- Healthcare is a life and death issue for our communities, especially communities of color.

- Access to quality care should not be based as a function of luck or privilege

- In Texas, pregnant black women are dying at 2 times rate of white women

- Affordable health care and access to quality, culturally competent care (need diversity among doctors) are limited for communities of color

Parkland to host breastfeeding fairs in August

DALLAS – In observance of World Breastfeeding Week (celebrated Aug. 1-7), Parkland will host its annual Breastfeeding Awareness and Community Fair on Wednesday, Aug. 1, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the private dining room at Parkland Memorial Hospital, 5200 Harry Hines Blvd., Dallas, 75235. The event is free and open to the public.

A second event will be held on Saturday, Aug. 25 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the deHaro-Saldivar Women's Health Center located at 1400 N.

Westmoreland Rd., Dallas, 75211. The event is also free and open to the public.

Breastfeeding is recognized by health experts as the best source of nutrition for most infants. At the events, mothers will receive information from Parkland's lactation consultants and other community health organizations. For more information, please visit www.parklandhospital.com.

Chuck D Talks State of Black America, Obama's Legacy and the Black Press

By Stacy M. Brown (NNPA Newswire Contributor)

To many hip-hop fans, historians and to his peers, Chuck D is considered one of the most influential lyricists in contemporary music.

In describing the Queens, New York City-born artist in the biography pages of his new book, "Chuck D Presents This Day in Rap and Hip-Hop History," the publisher notes that Chuck D helped paved the way for political, social, and culturally conscious hip-hop, both as a solo artist and as the leader of the ground-breaking group, Public Enemy.

In a wide-ranging exclusive interview with NNPA Newswire, the legend, whose given name is Douglas Ridenhour, addressed issues concerning Black America, including President Donald Trump, the importance of voting, and the need for the Black Press to reach even further around the globe.

"The state of Black America is always going to be a truncated state, if we don't expand to where we are in the world," said Chuck D, who just kicked off the wildly successful Prophets of Rage tour with Cypress Hill and Rage Against the Machine.

To date, the concert tour reportedly has drawn more than 3.1 million fans in over 27 countries.

"If [Black people] are going to rely on the United States of America to come around and give us answers, then we don't understand that we're all over the world, the majority...then we are doomed to be slaves in this country forever," Chuck D said. "You've got to fight to get out of the box; to achieve in the United States of America was never going to be an easy ride for Black people, so we shouldn't cut ourselves off from those who look like us in this 21st century."

In an era where new and upcoming hip-hop stars like Migos and Cardi B. are leaders, Chuck D remains universally revered.

His Public Enemy albums remain among the most critically-acclaimed works in rap music, including "It Takes a Nation of Millions to Hold Us Back" and "Fear of a Black Planet."

Earlier this year, a writer for GQ Magazine noted that not only is he one of the greatest and most influential MCs in rap's history, Chuck D is also blessed with the sort of encyclopedic knowledge and staggering recall that places him among the genre's foremost historians and custodians.

"Chuck was there, and he got receipts," the writer said.

Chuck D said that Black America should have done more to embrace President Barack Obama and realize his limitations.

"President Obama was a statement to the world, a gateway to the world and an introduction to understanding what's in the world for us," Chuck D said.

Chuck D continued: "He was not there so that we could simply stay in America and get answers, when the next guy who comes along is a dysfunctional idiot and everything gets reversed."

The hip-hop pioneer added that Obama's presidency gave us a passport to understand where Black people are in the world. Chuck said that he thinks Black people dropped the ball by not seizing on the opportunity while he was still in the White House.

"Waiting for Obama to do anything for Black people was the biggest fault in my opinion, because he was the president knowing damn well that he couldn't make 'the Black move,'" Chuck D said. "I think he gave it his all for eight years and we didn't do all that we could and, even then, it might have taken 30 years to take advantage of a person like Obama in office; but we only got eight."

Still, voting is key, Chuck D said, as he applauded the NNPA-led effort to register 5 million, new African American voters this year.

"Voting is as important as washing your tail in the morning," he said. "Pay attention to the local level and think about the bigger ramifications of not voting."

Chuck D continued: "You have to tell young people to pay attention at the local level, because when they run past that red light and they get pulled into that kangaroo court, where they want to revoke your license, that's who you should look at when voting. The literacy of what voting is to our young people is short-sighted and we can do better."

The recent shooting deaths of rappers XXXTentacion in North Miami, Florida and Jimmy Wapo in Pittsburgh, Penn., are as troublesome as the shooting deaths of his contemporaries, Notorious B.I.G., Jam Master Jay and Tupac, Chuck D said.

The mainstream media must share some of the blame, particularly in the case of XXXTentacion, Chuck D said.

"This is a serious issue. It's not trivial," Chuck D said. "I got on the [mainstream] media for pumping this kid up like he was going to die and when he dies, it's just another headline. What did you do to prevent this?"

Chuck D continued: "When a guy is in that much danger, don't give him coverage. The more you do that, the more of a target and a death sentence you give him."

To remain strong and relevant, the hip-hop legend said that the Black Press must get ahead of the curve and continue its global outreach efforts.

"I think being able to be multimedia and create your text into spoken word, where the Black Press does its own podcasts and also visual stories where sight and sound are used is important for the Black Press," he said. "But also, reaching beyond the border lines. The whole world has something to say and you've got to be eloquent in different languages, especially French and Spanish."

Chuck D continued: "The Black Press must be invested in the continents that want to be invested over here. This is what the Black Press could do; bring the world to your region."

Dallas Judge Turns Down Cop's Request for Venue Change in Murder Trial

Roy Oliver, former police officer in Balch Springs, will still be tried in Dallas. He made an attempt to have his case moved to a different county. He is set to go on trial this month, after killing a Mesquite teenager.

In their motion to move Oliver's trial, attorneys Jim Lane, Miles Brissette and Robert Gill claimed that Dallas County's jury pool is tainted against their client because of the coverage the media has devoted to the shooting. Specifically, they cite the frequent use of Oliver's mug shot as something that could influence potential jurors.

Texans Can Academies Sponsors Back-to-School Fund Drive for Upcoming School Year

DALLAS - July 31, 2018 - Texans Can Academies, a non-profit organization giving young Texans a second chance at life through education, today announced that they are sponsoring a back-to-school fund drive, Countdown to Class, for their students who need assistance getting ready for the approaching school year. As summertime comes to an end, students across the state of Texas are gearing up for the upcoming first day of school. While some are out shopping for new clothes or visiting their campus to pick up their school uniforms, others are faced with the dilemma of affording new clothes. Texans Can Academies understands the challenges a lot of families face with back-to-school expenses and wants their students to begin the school year with confidence and refreshed outlooks.

From now until September, Texans Can Academies is hosting their annual Countdown to Class 2018 Uniform Drive to raise funds that will benefit students at their 14 campuses across the state of Texas. The open-enrollment public charter high school has campuses located in Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio. The funds from the drive will benefit students and their families by providing brand new clothes that fit properly to wear as the school's uniform of khaki pants and white collared shirts. A $75 donation will provide one pair of pants, two shirts, socks and a belt for one student.

"We know the expense of school supplies and clothing can put a major dent in the household budget for a lot of families," said Richard Marquez, President and CEO of Texans Can Academies. "All donations will help our families provide back-to-school items so that their children will feel proud and comfortable during the school year. It's especially important for teenagers to feel confident in what they are wearing when they are in school so they focus on learning."

A 2018 study by Deloitte found that the average United States household planned to spend $510 per child on back-to-school shopping. The National Retail Federation estimates that families shopping for students this year will spend the most on clothing, about $237 per school-age child.

The cost of clothes and school supplies for teenagers can create financial and emotional strains on families that cannot be met and can lead to a child dropping out of school. Texans Can Academies takes steps every year to offer solutions to any obstacles students face outside their classrooms to help them remain in school and graduate.

"We know that if children don't have school supplies or the proper clothes to wear to school, they may decide to stay home," continued Marquez. "Our goal throughout our campuses and programming is to break down barriers to educational success. We are asking for help to raise funds for our kids to have clothes they are proud to wear to school throughout the school year. All children deserve to come to school wearing clothes that fit comfortably and feeling like they look their best."

Texans Can Academies believes in providing the highest quality education for all students. The high school's curriculum has been designed to prepare their students for life beyond high school graduation with skills and concepts such as Marquez Reading, thinking skills, college preparation, workforce etiquette and more. Classes are structured with a learning, yet nurturing environment that touches on student-centered decision making.

Serving the education system for 33 years, Texans Can Academies provides open enrollment, public high schools of choice for students who have struggled in traditional high school settings. To participate in Texans Can Academies' 2018-2019 Uniform Drive, please visit www.texanscan.org/countdown2class2018.

About Texans Can Academies

Celebrating 33 years of providing the highest quality education for all students, Texans Can schools are graduating thinkers. Texans Can Academies are a unique network of 14 charter schools located in Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio. The schools are tuition-free, open enrollment, public high schools of choice serving students who have struggled in a traditional high school setting. To date, more than 143,000 youth have been given a second chance at life with the opportunity to pursue their dreams. Cars for Kids is a 501(c)3 tax exempt organization benefiting Texans Can Academies and is the only car donation program in Texas that is operated by the charity it serves. Jerry Jones told by NFL to: STOP TALKING

(AP) - By Matthew Paras - The Washington Times - Monday, July 30, 2018

After Jerry Jones publicly said he would not allow his players to stay in the locker room during the playing of the national anthem, the NFL came back with a message of their own: Stop talking.

According to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, the Cowboys owner told local television stations in Dallas that he would not answer any questions related to the league's anthem policy because "he has been told not to by the league."

The stations each had a scheduled sitdown to interview Jones, who told them he would not do it unless they agreed not to ask about the anthem.

That condition wasn't acceptable to Fox 4, and the channel canceled the interview at the last minute.

An Open Letter to Jerry Jones, Owner of the Dallas Cowboys

Dear Jerry Jones,

Oh say can YOU see? You have fumbled an opportunity to intercept a lie and use your privilege to score for justice. As a life long fan of the Dallas Cowboys, who once enjoyed season tickets, it's heart-breaking that you have taken a stand on the wrong sideline of history. As training camp opened you used your mighty microphone to passionately pronounce that there is no room on the Dallas Cowboys for the right to protest for right during the national anthem.

Your "massa complex" has shown your boys where the "gun line" (check out the movie Life) is! And they had better not cross it! Your quarterback, who went to school in the same state where Emmitt Till was lynched, Fannie Lou Hamer was brutally beaten by police, Medgar Evers was assassinated and remains a place of wicked white supremacy, vicious police misconduct, and a justice system that is criminal, knows his place and has echoed your sentiment and committed a terrible turnover for freedom. Oh say, did he see white Mississippi police officer Daniel Starks tasing a handcuffed black man for no reason?

I held out hope that given your track record as a game changing maverick and successful businessman that you would use your privileged platform to actually take a stand for what the flag symbolizes, "liberty and justice for all." You have been fiercely independent as an NFL owner but you allowed 46-1 to punk you and the NFL while he was pledging allegiance to Vladimir Putin and Russia. Oh say can you see? Your friend in the White House has emboldened racists, put a white supremacist over the justice department (whose policies reinforce the racial injustice Colin Kaepernick was taking a knee for) and signaled to police that brutality is ok. I guess that's why you reaffirmed your partnership with Papa John's Pizza while saying nothing to denounce the ugly bigotry dripping from the lips of the former owner?

Colin Kaepernick took a knee during his last season as a quarterback for the 49ers because he was sick and tired of Black sisters and brothers dying, mothers crying and police departments lying. In the tradition of Paul Robeson, Althea Gibson, Wilma Rudolph, Muhammad Ali, John Carlos and Tommie Smith, Curt Flood, Serena Williams, LeBron James and others he used his platform to raise consciousness and speak truth to power on behalf of the powerless who have no platform.

Oh say can you see?
As owner of America's team that is comprised of almost 80% African Americans did you know that "This is America" for them:

Police violence and homicide persistently and disproportionately terrorize black communities. A new study reveals the proportion of black bodies in America killed by police is significantly higher than previous research suggested.

Across the country, black men are over three times more likely to be killed by police than white men, according to a study published in the American Journal of Public Health. In an analysis of all male homicides between 2012 and 2018, 8 percent occurred at the hands of police, who serve and protect YOU, researchers found.

Of nearly 6,300 reported deaths during the six-year count, almost 1,800 were black. "This is America." Oh say can you see, Jerry? Police killings are highest among black men across the United States. Lead author Frank Edwards is sadly correct when he interprets, "Police operate completely differently in different places," he said. "How police operate is often determined by the race of the person they're interacting with and the racial compositions of the places they work in."

Oh say can you see?
The vast majority of your players live in this America. Yes, their contracts may have allowed them to move into nicer neighborhoods but their black skin still means they are seen as suspects who pose a threat.

Sadly, your son Stephen, seconded your motion and brazenly declared if you want to be a Dallas Cowboy you will stand for the national anthem. This is one instance where the blatant hypocrisy of your organization just may exceed your racist insensitivity. On America's team you can brutally beat your wife, girlfriend, or kids. You can drink and drive, you can take drugs and steroids, but if you peacefully protest, you cannot be a Dallas Cowboy!?

Oh say can you see!
It's evident, Jerry, that you never had to give Stephen "The Talk" and tell him how to behave in the presence of police officers, have you Jerry? Ask your black players about "The Talk." Oh say can you see and have you noticed the news accounts where black people have the police called on them for breathing, going to Starbucks, lounging in the university common area where they are enrolled, selling water as an 8 year old, eating at Waffle House and doing community service as a sorority. The brilliant actor, Ving Rhames shared his terrifying experience with racism that resulted in police putting a gun in his face at the front door of his own home in Brentwood, CA because a neighbor called 911 saying that he was breaking into what is his own house. Have you or Stephen ever had the police called on you because of the color of your skin? Have you or Stephen ever been stopped by the police and worried that you wouldn't come out of the stop alive? Oh say can you see, Jerry?

I wish you had the courageous empathy of the gifted Anne Hathaway. She gets it.

Hathaway is outraged by the fatal stabbing of 18-year-old Nia Wilson by a white man. The Oscar award-winning actress used her privilege and prestige to dedicate an Instagram post to honoring the life of the young black woman. Wilson and her sister, who survived the attack, were stabbed at the BART MacArthur Station in Oakland, Calif., on July 22.

But Hathaway's post was more than a passive tribute to Wilson — it was a wake up call and a courageous critique of those who are oblivious to black pain and hide behind their "white privilege" and fail to take action in the face of violence, injustice and racism.

Describing Wilson's murder as "unspeakable," the Ocean's 8 star acknowledged her own privilege while calling for white people to get off the sidelines of indifference and privilege and step up. Oh say can you hear her, Jerry?

"White people — including me, including you — must take into the marrow of our privileged bones the truth that ALL black people fear for their lives DAILY in America and have done so for GENERATIONS," she wrote. "White people DO NOT have equivalence for this fear of violence. Given those givens, we must ask our (white) selves — how 'decent' are we really? Not in our intent, but in our actions? In our lack of action?"

She ended the message with the #BlackLivesMatter hashtag, as well as #AntiRacist, #NoExcuse, #SayHerName, and #EarnTheRightToSayHerName

Jerry, she's a winner. Anne Hathaway is truly free and brave. She is doing what the wisdom writer said in Proverbs 31:8-9:

"Speak up for those who cannot speak for themselves; ensure justice for those being crushed. Yes, speak up for the poor and helpless, and see that they get justice."

Oh say can you see, Jerry!

Peace and Power.

LeBron James Family Foundation's I Promise School opens in Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - With the launch of a public school in his hometown of Akron, Ohio, LeBron James has joined a long list of celebrities who have sought to leave their mark on education centers.

The NBA star, who recently left the Cleveland Cavaliers and signed with the Los Angeles Lakers, was on hand Monday to welcome children to the I Promise School, built in a partnership with the LeBron James Family Foundation and Akron

City Schools. The school launches with a group of third- and fourth-graders and plans to expand to serve first through eighth grades by 2022.

James has said the school, with a non-traditional schedule and year-round programming, can have a lasting impact for children facing the kinds of challenges he faced during a rough childhood. James grew up without a father, and he missed a lot of school because he and his mother lacked transportation.

Paul Quinn College Names Plano, Texas as First Site of Urban Work College Network

DALLAS--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Jul 26, 2018--Paul Quinn College (Paul Quinn), the creator of the Urban Work College and one of the most innovative colleges in America, will open the inaugural site of its Urban Work College Network in Plano, Texas beginning the 2018-19 academic year.

PQC-Plano represents the first site in the planned national expansion of Paul Quinn's Urban Work College Model (Model). The Model aims to eradicate poverty through combining higher education with access to quality jobs, secure housing, and reduced student loan burden. Paul Quinn first experimented with the Model in 2013 and was designated by the Department of Education as the ninth federally-recognized Work College in 2017. Since the implementation of the Model, Paul Quinn has reduced tuition and fees by almost $10,000, lowered the average debt of its graduates by more than $30,000, and significantly improved student retention and graduation rates.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Men/Women in Blue Praise Break "COMMENDATION GALA"

Media Contact: Avis E. Hardaman
2935 S. Lancaster Rd., Dallas, TX 75216 - (214) 541-7642

12 August, 2018; Dallas, Texas (For Immediate Release) – ELE Productions, Inc., GLLMA, and CCA announce a Gospel music recital to commend our Men and Women in Blue. The event is called "MWIB Praise Break Commendation Gala".

The event will take place on Sunday, August 12, 2018, at McGriff's Antiques and Imports, located at 2935 S. Lancaster Rd., Dallas, TX 75216. Doors open at 4:00 pm, recital begins at 5:00 pm, followed by fellowship and refreshments.

The inspiration for MWIB Praise Break was born from the compassion, above and beyond the call of duty, shown by Dallas Police Sergeant Donald Boice, as told in a piece by CBS 11 news reporter J. D. Miles, aired May 29, 2018. Our inspiration grew stronger when we saw the report on Mesquite Officer Winston 'Blade' Bowen, and his compassion shown in the Pleasant Grove neighborhood, as told by Channel 8 news reporter Andrea Lucia, aired May 28, 2018. Now, with the recent passing of Dallas' first African American Firefighter, Kenneth Lambert Parker, our first "COMMENDATION GALA" seems complete and timely.

Local musicians performing include Evangelist Ophelia Garner, Saxophonist Jeff Aycock, Bishop Bernita Scott, radical praise dancer Princess Warrior (aka Sista Nekki), up and coming singer Phoenix J. Riggs, The Marvelous Change Family, Lady Avis with Ronnie Rambin, Cliff Hunnicutt, Jacki Billings, Kevin Stone, and Jeannine Cumming, members of the band Foundation Repair.

Everyone is welcome to join us commend, honor, and salute the Men and Women who wear the Blue, and whose trailblazing, courage and compassion move our communities to unite.
