SERVING THE BLACK COMMUNITY WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR SINCE 1947

July 30 - August 5, 2015

BACK-TO-SCHOOL VACCINES: IMPERATIVE TO GOOD HEALTH

One of the best ways a parent can protect a child is by ensuring he has the right vaccines at the right time. Your child's pediatrician or family doctor can help. Children are left susceptible to contagious diseases, such as chickenpox, measles or hepatitis if they are not immunized. Some of the diseases are debilitating, have life-long effects, and can even be deadly. Vaccinations are extremely important for the health of your child as well as the health of the community. Millions of lives have been saved thanks to vaccines. Each year the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) publishes an updated recommended immunization list and schedule for children (birth through 6 years) and for preteens and teens (7-18 years) which are available online and likely available at your doctor's office.

In the calm before the storm that is back-to-school, parents are encouraged to resolve student immunizations as early as possible to avoid the inevitable back-to-school rush in clinics, doctor's offices and medical facilities throughout the city.

Students enrolling in Dallas ISD for the first time must provide evidence of required immunizations. Official records from a physician or health clinic, which provide documentation of current immunizations, are required. All immunizations should be completed by the first date of attendance. The law requires that students be fully vaccinated against specified diseases.

A 30-day provisional enrollment is available to students transferring from one Texas school to another Texas school and to students defined as homeless.

Exemptions from immunization requirements may be granted on a medical basis or based upon religious or personal belief. If a parent chooses to seek an immunization exemption, they must provide a medical exemption signed by their physician and are also required to submit an affidavit provided by the Texas Department of State Health Services.

Dallas ISD families can receive immunizations for $5 at any of the district's 11 Youth and Family Centers. For more information or to locate a Youth and Family Center nearest you, call 972-502-4190. For information on immunization requirements for new and returning students, visit <http://www.dallasisd.org/Page/120>.

OBAMA VISITS HIS FATHER'S HOMELAND

(AP) - President Barack Obama's historic visit to Kenya and Ethiopia, his father's homeland, which concluded Tuesday, was marked by stirring images of throngs of thousands coming out to cheer the motorcade for the first visit by a sitting American president.

Pictures of Obama can already be found across Africa and especially in Kenya, the birthplace of his father, where it isn't unusual to see gargantuan murals of his face on buildings or cardboard cutouts outside cafes.

T-shirts for the visit proclaiming "Father has reached home" were sold in the streets and he was greeted at the airport by his half-sister Auma Obama in an emotional embrace that was a strong reminder of his ties to the East African country.

There was pomp and circumstance aplenty at Nairobi's State House, where Obama was serenaded by the Kenya Air Force band while he reviewed the honor guard with his counterpart Uhuru Kenyatta.

Overhead, U.S. military Blackhawk helicopters surveyed the scene with the legs of the snipers dangling out the open side doors as part of the heavy security that marked the five-day visit.

While not everyone could attend Obama's speeches, crowds converged on the roads taken by his motorcades and enthusiastic spectators took selfies of themselves during this historic moment.

Inside Nairobi's Safaricom Arena, Obama was treated like a rock star as a sea of hands surged forward to be shaken.

In his speech at the African Union headquarters in Addis Ababa in Ethiopia, Obama urged the continent's leaders to build for future generations by creating jobs and fighting corruption.

He promised help in this "enormous undertaking" and underlined U.S. help by visiting projects in the two countries, including Ethiopia's Faffa Foods factory that is part of an American "Feed the Future" program to help small farmers.

Whitney Houston's Daughter Dies Bobbi Kristina Brown

Bobbi Kristina Brown, daughter of the late entertainer Whitney Houston and R&B singer Bobby Brown died Sunday. She was 22.

She had been placed in hospice care in June following months of hospitalization in Atlanta since she was found face down and unresponsive in a bathtub of her townhouse Jan. 31.

She is finally at peace in the arms of God", said Kristen Foster, a representative for the Houston family. "We want to again thank everyone for their tremendous amount of love and support during these last few months."

Brown was the only child between Bobby Brown and Houston, who died in 2012.

Bobbi Kristina Brown had told Oprah Winfrey shortly after her mother's death that she wanted to carry on her mother's legacy by singing, acting and dancing. But her career never took off.

Actor and producer Tyler Perry said she had a future as an actress after her debut on his TV show For Better or Worse in 2012.

But she appeared in only one episode. Aside from two ill-fated reality TV shows and the occasional paparazzi video, her image mostly showed up in the selfies she posted online.

She became social media sensation, sending more than 11,000 tweets and attracting 164,000 Followers.

Bobbi Kristina had appeared alongside both parents in 2005 on the Bravo reality show being Bobby Brown, which captured her parents fighting, swearing and appearing in court.

The Hollywood Reporter said the show revealed that Brown was "even more vulgar than the tabloids suggest" and managed to rob Houston of any last sheds of dignity.

After their divorce in 2007, Houston kept custody of Bobbi Kristina, but their tight bond was shattered when Houston's assistant found her lifeless body face down in a foot of water in her bathtub at the Beverly Hills Hotel just before the Grammy Awards in 2012.

Authorities determined that it was an accidental drowning but found evidence of drug use.

Bobbi Kristina Brown, daughter of the late entertainer Whitney Houston

Bobbi Kristina, then 18, was at the hotel and became so hysterical she had to be hospitalized.

She wasn't only a mother; she was a best friend," she told Winfrey.

$15 Minimum Wage Gathers Steam

Push for $15 minimum wage gathers steam

The federal minimum wage has stood at $7.25 an hour since 2009, but labor unions and anti-poverty advocates are pushing a rate more than twice that amount as the new standard needed to afford hourly earners a decent living.

The movement to make $15-per-hour the mandatory minimum over the next several years has seen success in a number of cities and is starting to spill over to state-houses and public universities. On Wednesday, University of California President Janet Napolitano announced that the 10-campus system would pay its employees at least that much by late 2017, while a New York wage board backed an eventual $15 an hour for the state's 150,000 fast-food workers. A full-time worker would make $31,000 a year.

Other States
Twenty-nine states have minimum wages higher than the federal government requires, they range from $7.50 in Arkansas, Maine and New Mexico to $9.47 in Washington, according to the National Employment Law Project. As things stand, California is set to take the lead next year at $10 and Massachusetts in 2017 at $11. That could change as the $15 model gains traction.

Legislation to incrementally get to that rate, either for all workers or just the fast-food industry, or to enact smaller increases was introduced in nine states this year: California, Delaware, Colorado, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Oregon and Washington.

Federal plans
President Barack Obama called on Congress in 2013 to boost the federal minimum wage to $9 and came back a year later to say it should be $10.

Whether it should be raised, when and to what are likely to remain sparring points for the candidates vying to replace Obama after the 2016 presidential election.

Vice President Joe Biden set the stage Wednesday when he said the federal hourly base wage should grow to at least $12. Biden made the comments while visiting Bobrick Washroom Equipment in Los Angeles, where he chatted with employees as they assembled soap dispensers.

The business has been in LA for more than 100 years, and its CEO backed the recent city ordinance that raises the minimum wage to $15 an hour over several years.

Biden was joined by Los Angeles County lawmakers, who a day earlier had voted to move toward making the county's minimum wage $15 per hour.

Dr. Hinojosa aims to Inspire and Assess Hinojosa returned to the DISD last month when trustees unanimously approved him as interim superintendent after the departure of Mike Miles. During the three weeks he has been on the job, he has met with employees, board members and community members and begun assessing what's working and what's not working. He said that some people don't want him to touch anything. And while he is not planning on drastic changes, said that some things will need adjustment. Hinojosa said he will not sit and ignore things," he said once he knows something, he has to do something about it. Hinojosa met with principals on Monday. He said that he was to giddy to sleep the night before the meeting. Said that it felt like it was his first day of school," he joked. I knew it was my first chance with the principals. And I wanted them to realize that we are not Changing course, but I wanted them to be excited." He said that a majority of board members and high-level employees are excited about new programs, such as the new Teacher Excellence initiative, and the evaluation system for teachers that tie their pay to performance. He said that as he gets further down the chain, the excitement isn't as strong. He said that he is still getting educated on the evaluation program. Hinojosa said what has made him nervous is the added staffing and financial resources in the district. The operating budget has grown about $136 million since his departure and the 2015-2016 budgets are $1.39 billion. He said that he will meet with chief financial officer Jim Terry this week to discuss district finances. He has not forgotten the financial crisis in 2008 under his watch which led to hundreds of teachers being laid off.

On 50th Anniversary, Medicare and Medicaid Still Vital

By Jazelle Hunt
NNPA Washington
Correspondent

(NNPA) - As Medicare and Medicaid turn 50 this week, the nation takes a look at the impact of two of the most significant government programs ever launched.

Medicare serves roughly 52 million Americans as of 2013, about 10 percent of whom are Black. The program is part of the Social Security Act and was created to provide health insurance for seniors regardless of income or health status. Today, Medicare covers seniors, permanently disabled people of all ages, and people with Lou Gehrig's disease (ALS) or end-stage kidney disease.

"Medicare in the African American community [has] been a lifesaver," said Karyne Jones, president and CEO of the National Caucus and Center on Black Aging. "Without it, a very large majority of Black seniors wouldn't have any health care. As a result of ... all of those institutional things that occurred, we didn't have jobs in the '40s and '50s and even '60s that provided [retirement] health care programs or insurance programs. So it's a blessing."

The wealth gap is one of the primary reasons Medicare is so instrumental for Black seniors. While most beneficiaries are White, and most have modest fixed incomes, Black beneficiaries often have little to no retirement funds compared to White people. According to the Kaiser Family Foundation, 95 percent of White beneficiaries had retirement savings, close to $90,000 on average. Meanwhile, the average amount saved by the 81 percent of Black beneficiaries who had personal retirement funds was more than $10,000.

Further, pensions have weakened over the last decade through state deficits and penny-pinching corporate policies.

"There was a time when, if you worked for a place for a long, long time, after you retired you could still have some insurance with that company. Those days are gone," Jones said. "You can imagine what it's like to work all your life without coverage - as you get older, those chronic diseases start kicking in. And if you've not caught them early or been able to maintain them, they're worse as you get older. And just think, you have no medical coverage, you have no health care? So your life expectancy and the dignity of your life is zero. This is a program that is crucial."

While policy analysts and politicians agree that Medicare has been one of the nation's most effective public programs, the logistics of the program are very confusing for both beneficiaries and health care providers.

There's also the prevalent belief that the program is slowly spiraling out of control. The Kaiser Family Foundation reports that the program's $505 billion allotment was 14 percent of the last year's federal budget. The program regularly overspends its limit, and will only get more expensive; the cost of health care rises each year, millions of Baby Boomers are retiring, and the smaller number of younger workers and payroll taxes from dwindling wages will not be enough to support the Boomers.

Medicaid - Medicare's equivalent program for low-income Americans - is even more contested in its 50th year.

According to Samantha Artiga, policy analyst for the Kaiser Family Foundation, the racial disparities that make Black seniors reliant on Medicare are the same ones that make Medicaid so vital for Black families and individuals. She points out that Medicaid covers more than half of all Black children and Latino children, and that Black families are much less likely than Whites to have high wages or insurance through their employer.

"Medicaid has really played a pivotal role in helping to fill this gap in coverage," Artiga said. "And then also, when we've done focus groups or interviews with families, we really hear over and over about the raw impact Medicaid has on their lives, in terms of providing a sense of financial security, feeling protected from high medical costs...and ability to focus on other areas of life."

Originally intended for children, pregnant women, parents on public assistance, the disabled, and impoverished seniors, the Affordable Care Act (ACA) has further expanded the program to cover low-income people regardless of whether they have children.

The ACA tried to require all states to cover these citizens and offered to fully fund the expansion with federal dollars, as states continued to administer the program. Instead, the Supreme Court ruled the expansion mandate unconstitutional, and made it optional for states. As it stands, 19 states have rejected the idea, including almost the entire South (except Arkansas, Kentucky, and West Virginia) the region with the highest concentration of Black Americans in the nation. More than half of all non-elderly Black people still without insurance as of March are Medicaid eligible under the new guidelines, but many live in non-expansion states and will likely remain uninsured because of it.

"There still remains some significant gaps in coverage for low-income adults and these disproportionately impacted Black Americans," Artiga said. "We're seeing now, with recent data, declines in uninsured rates since implementation of the ACA, and those declines have been larger for Blacks and Hispanics relative to Whites, suggesting already a beginning of some narrowing of these coverage gaps. But they still remain more likely to be uninsured than Whites."

Lawmakers and experts assert that Medicaid and Medicare are becoming too inclusive and expensive to sustain. Fraud, abuse, and waste have also become a real problem. These widespread scams charge for services that aren't actually provided and pocket the federal funds; authorize unnecessary services, or bill necessary ones incorrectly; or administer services to someone other than the beneficiary - sometimes even after the person is deceased. The misuse consumes additional billions in taxpayer money each year.

There are also concerns about insufficient access to specialty care through the program, and the already-strained availability of care providers particularly in rural areas.

Both sides of the political aisle believe the systems need to change - progressives favor tighter security accountability on the current systems, while conservatives advocate a complete overhaul.

Although the programs have both done a great deal to address health care access gaps, Artiga said that government-sponsored health coverage is not a cure-all for ending disparities. Still, the programs have achieved measurable positive outcomes over the past 50 years.

"You don't want to live in a country where you continue to see an increase of poor, unhealthy people. That drags on the entire system," Jones said. "I can't believe that this country still believes that your health should be only as much as you can afford. Medicare and Medicaid stand at the beginning of us at least acknowledging our own humanity. I'm hoping that not only do they expand the benefits, but that they recognize that a healthy America is a prosperous America."

Celebrating Fifty Years of Medicare and Medicaid

By Congresswoman Eddie Bernice Johnson

On July 30th, our country will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Medicare and Medicaid programs that have helped to improve the health of our nation and have ensured that all of our citizens can access quality health care. I remain in full support of a strong Medicare program and have advocated for the expansion of Medicaid in states, such as Texas, where millions of residents remain uninsured.

According to federal data, nearly one of every three Americans is covered by one of the two programs. The legislation giving birth to the landmark programs was signed into law by President Lyndon Baines Johnson twenty years after a health coverage plan proposed by President Harry S. Truman in 1945 was rejected by Congress. In fact, President Johnson presented the first Medicare Cards to President Harry Truman and his wife, First Lady Bess Truman in 1966.

Before the creation of the Medicare and Medicaid programs, nearly half of all senior citizens in America were without health insurance. This caused tremendous financial strain on families, forcing some into bankruptcy as they battled serious health challenges.

Today, more than 100 million people receive quality health care through Medicare or Medicaid. Because of the programs, they are able to live with the peace of mind and dignity that comes with affordable health coverage and economic security.

Approximately 55 million Americans receive health care coverage through Medicare. Beneficiaries are eligible for preventive services, various health screenings, flu shots and other routine care. Medicare also covers prescription drugs, supplies, lab tests, and hospital stays.

Medicaid benefits nearly 70 million Americans, including 33 million children who are covered under the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP). Low-income individuals, children, pregnant women, and individuals who have physical or mental disabilities are eligible for essential services such as annual physical examinations, prenatal care and dental care.

In 2010, when President Obama signed the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act into law, the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation was created, requirements for Medicaid eligibility were adjusted and enrollment requirements were simplified. In Congress, I intend to continue my work to improve and protect Medicare and Medicaid.

I will fight any and all efforts to place the programs into the hands of private operators, to cut funding of these vital programs, or any attempts to play political games with people's health and wellness. Medicare and Medicaid have worked well for millions of Americans during the past fifty years, and with continued improvements and congressional guidance, they will continue to serve eligible citizens for many years to come.

"A GREAT PROMISE THAT WAS FILLED" ACTS 1:1-8

REV. JOHNNY C. SMITH,
PASTOR - MOUNT MORIAH
MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH

The book of Acts is a continuation of Dr. Luke's treatise in the Gospel of Luke in which he gives an account of what Jesus did and taught as He sojourned among men for thirty-three years. This chronicle of Jesus' life covers the time of His birth, awesome ministry, and the point of His death, resurrection and ascension. Dr. Luke, the writer of Acts, addressed this book to a specific person, namely Theophilus, whose name means "friend of God." Many scholars advance that the book of Acts was written about A.D. 62 or 63, because it makes no reference to the persecution by Nero (A.D. 64), or Paul's death (A.D. 68), or to the time when Jerusalem was destroyed (A.D. 70). The book of Acts serves as the historical connection between the Gospels and the Epistles. It records the marvelous work of the Saviour through His followers.

In Acts 1:3, Jesus Christ was seen of His disciples for forty days in which He gave them indisputable evidence of His resurrection. Again, these infallible proofs (positive proofs) served as evidence that Christ kept His promise that He would rise from the grave (Matthew 16:21; Mark 8:31, 9:31; Luke 9:22, 18:33). During the forty days, Christ appeared at least eleven different times to His disciples. During this time He spoke about "things pertaining to the Kingdom of God." According to verses 4 and 5, Christ gives specific instruction that the assembled group should wait for the promise of the Father - the coming of the Holy Spirit as their guide in continuing the ministry of Christ through them.

As John baptized with water, this assembled group would be baptized with the Holy Spirit (v. 5). Having taught His disciples during the forty days "of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God", the disciples were eager to know the time when this Kingdom would be established, thinking that Jesus would now reign as King since the crucifixion was now past and Jesus had been victorious over the grave. Jesus replied to these disciples by simply saying that the precise time for the restoration of Israel's Kingdom was God's secret and was not important for them to know - "And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in His own power" (v. 7).

Although the exact time of Israel's Kingdom was not given, Christ gives a commission to these disciples that is still valid today for us - "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (v. 8). With this commission, Christ promises power to carry out the responsibility to be witnesses for Him. Power to carry out the commission comes from the Holy Spirit. As witnesses for Christ, we need the Holy Spirit's power as we carry the message of the gospel. From Acts 1:8, the message of the gospel expanded from Jerusalem (chapters 1-7), Samaria (chapters 8-12), and unto the uttermost part of the earth (chapters 13-28). Because Christ's promise was fulfilled, we have the power in the Person of the Holy Spirit to equip us in telling a dying world about the emancipating love of God in saving the lost.

May God Bless!

A Little Bit of Faith: Renew Your Strength

BY COLLEEN WHITE

Do you ever get tired of waiting? Have you ever waited for something for a long, long, time? All of us have waited for something from time to time. And we may have been disappointed when it did not happen. In the book of Isaiah we are told that if we wait on the Lord our strength will be reenergized. Isaiah 40:31 says, "...but those who hope in the Lord will renew their strength. They will soar on wings like eagles; they will run and not grow weary, they will walk and not be faint."

It is easy to become discouraged by disappointments in life. A discouraging word can bring a person down even lower. It is difficult for us to wait for good things to happen, but if we learn to be patient there can be a renewed strength that comes when we see that our waiting was not in vain.

Discouragement in one's life can leave the strongest person to discount anything good will ever come their way. This is why it is important for the believer in Christ to lean totally on His faith to help Him get through life's difficult moments. Don't even try to depend on your own strength, because when you do, you will always fall short.

Remember that you have the best cheerleader-God. With God on your side, how can you lose? Trust in God and wait on Him, He will give you the right answer you need each and every time. God is a right on time God! Amen? Amen.

Evil
Evil is the work of the devil,
Evil lives inside of very unhappy people.
Evil will cause you to do bad devilish things toward your family, Friends, and neighbors to be jealous of each other.
Evil causes anger, Fighting, Killings, and world wars.
Evil causes people to say hurting words to each other.
Evil is another word for HATE!
Evil is just another name for satan.

GOP Leaders Say Senate Will Vote on Ending Planned Parenthood Federal Aid Before August Break

(AP) - The Senate will vote before its August recess on a Republican effort to bar federal aid to Planned Parenthood, GOP leaders said Tuesday, as anti-abortion groups clamored for action by lawmakers. Democrats said they will strongly oppose what they called the latest Republican effort to weaken women's health care programs, but stopped short of flatly predicting its defeat.

The positioning came as an anti-abortion group released a third covertly recorded video of Planned Parenthood officials discussing procedures for obtaining tissue from aborted fetuses for research and showing stark close-ups of what it said was fetal tissue in a Planned Parenthood lab. The unveiling of the videos has put Planned Parenthood and many Democrats on the defensive, though there is little sign that they won't be able to head off the GOP effort.

There are a total of 54 Republicans in the Senate, mostly opposed to abortion, and just a handful of anti-abortion Democrats. One of them, Sen. Bob Casey, D-Pa., said in a brief interview that he would not support the effort to end government help for Planned Parenthood because "they provide all kinds of primary health care" for women and because of the prohibition against using federal funds for virtually any abortions.

GOP senators unveiled a bill Tuesday evening prohibiting federal aid to Planned Parenthood and directing that the money instead be directed to "other eligible entities to provide women's health care services.

The bill cites state and local health departments, federally backed community health centers and other providers of health services to women who might get the money. Republicans were hoping that might encourage Democrats to pull funds away from Planned Parenthood, which even some abortion-rights Democrats have avoided defending since the videos were released.

Planned Parenthood has said it has done nothing illegal or improper. It receives more than $500 million annually in government aid, including some state funds. Federal funds cannot be used for abortions except for pregnancies involving rape, incest or where the mother's life is in danger.

Planned Parenthood's latest annual report says it performs about 4.5 million tests and treatments for sexually transmitted diseases yearly, provides 3.6 million contraceptive devices and procedures and hundreds of thousands of cancer screens. It also reported nearly 328,000 abortion procedures.

Asked by lawmakers Tuesday about Planned Parenthood, Health and Human Services Secretary Sylvia Burwell said the dispute over how the group gets fetal organs for research involves "passion and emotion and belief on many sides of the issue, and I want to respect that."

It is illegal to sell fetal tissue for profit, but legal for a group providing it to recover the costs of the procedure. Planned Parenthood has said it only takes fetal organs if the mother agrees to let that occur, and only after she has planned to have an abortion.

House Republicans say there are no plans for a vote in that chamber before it begins its recess, probably on Wednesday. The Senate is scheduled to leave the Capitol at the end of next week.

The videos have been released by the Center for Medical Progress. Its founder, David Daleiden, previously worked with the anti-abortion group Live Action, which has released several undercover videos aimed at discrediting Planned Parenthood.

COWBOYS OWNER JONES HAS HIP REPLACEMENT, PLANNING ANOTHER

(AP) - Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones has undergone left hip replacement surgery. He plans to be with the team as usual when training camp starts in California this week.

Team spokesman Rich Dalrymple says Jones had the procedure last Tuesday and "has been mobile and walking comfortably for the past few days." Dalrymple said Jones also was planning to have his right hip replaced soon.

The 72-year-old Jones has been bothered by the hip for about a year. He was seen having trouble walking some stairs during offseason workouts this spring at the team's headquarters.

Jones is planning to conduct his traditional camp-opening news conference Wednesday in Oxnard, California. The team's first workout is Thursday.

BE KIND! Never speak harsh words. Be kind and gentle with your tongue. For it has been said that the tongue can be like a sword. Think long before you criticize your neighbor. Your tongue can be nasty. Living is one of the most beautiful things in the world. But the tongue can kill!

My Day: Coffee With A Cop Series

By Dr. J. Ester Davis

One of my favorite places to visit in Jamaica is Ocho Rios, home of Dunn's River Falls - a beautiful spectacle that never ceases to amaze. Water cascades down a long series of rocks as it makes it way to the Caribbean Sea. You can climb the falls, scrambling over rounded rocks on an invigorating trek to the top. The moving water, the potentially slippery surface, not to mention steep angles make the going slow and extremely treacherous. Parents stand at the bottom of the falls cautioning their loved ones to be careful, concentrate and "listen to me" in a shouting tone.

Clearly, with all of life's possible dangers coming our way as we climb through life, it is most important that we take each step and watch where we are going, which is our practice to our children as they grow up. If you train up a child in a certain way, he does not detour far from it. The key word here is train.

Fortunately for us, there are some retired "cops" in our community that want to place more emphasis upon that certain word "training". Simple question. What are you training your child to do when stopped by the police. We should train our children (and they are all ours), to obey authority first at home and obey police officers.

Officers have an important role to place in our society. I, personally, do not want to live anywhere without them. When I travel, I want to see them. When I call, I want a response. When I am injured, I want to see red, flashing lights, with cops, coming to my rescue.

So, the notion that "cops" are the enemy is nonsense. The conversation needs to change. The conversation should start with what do you do when you are stopped by a police officer. Young, old, black, white or purple, in the country or in your boat. There is a proper protocol and practice that should be strictly adhered to.

Call me and attend the conversation. You are invited. Coffee with cops at Dallas Post Tribune newspaper offices. Need to count on you. Please give me a call for the details.

The Evans and Lowe Family Reunion A Tremendous Success!

The Evans and Lowe family reunion was held Saturday, July 15, 2015 at Mt. Pleasant Civic Center in Mt. Pleasant, Texas. People came from Colorado, Houston, California, Oklahoma and other parts of the country. Mrs. Edvernell Davenport did a dynamic job to put all the pieces together to a successful reunion.

Celebrating the Life and Legacy of Rev. Bettie Ruth Engram Kennedy

Hunger Poverty, Hopelessness, Integration and Inclusion Downtrodden Faith Hope and Love

It was this passion to fill the stomachs of her neighbors that led her to a life-long feeding ministry.

She'll cook up a pot of beans and take it to the streets. She'll get bakeries and grocery stores like Brookshire Brothers to share their day old goods - she'll take that to the streets.

Supporters will drop off bags of food and clothes on her front porch - she'll take that to the streets.

Frequently by herself, but occasionally friends or others anxious to help will ride along.

Over time and with the support of churches, friends and fellow activists, this morphed into a community food drive that this year fed more than 1600 families.

County Court at Law Judge Bob Inselmann has worked with her on this project as well as in the community garden.

One of her daughters remembers when she and her mom were out and about in Lufkin one day and a lady remarked on her mother's beautiful dress. Her mother went home, cleaned the dress and returned to town and gave her dress to the lady who had admired it so.

This remarkable lady has gone by many names through the years.... Some call her teacher. Some Pastor.

After graduating from Prairie View A and M - she taught in Lufkin, but then taught at the Texas Deaf, Blind and Orphan School in Austin. She later returned to Lufkin to raise her family. She taught until 1986.

For 25 years she served the people of Collins Chapel CME Church as their pastor. Her Friendships cross county, state and national lines. She builds alliances with those who can help her.

Governor Rick Perry recently declared her a YELLOW ROSE OF TEXAS.

In spite of the accolades and her advancing age, she says she won't retire until GOD RETIRES HER!

Tonight, her foundation remains - her faith, her family - seven children, 9 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren - and her heroes from history... Sojourner Truth, Rosa Parks, Coretta Scott King, Harriet Tubman and so many others. She brings these characters to life in schools, churches and community centers.
