Ms. Ada Cecilia Collins Anderson presented Huston-Tillotson University with a $3 million gift to Dr. Larry Earvin, President of HT

Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) Paul Quinn College and Huston-Tillotson University received million dollar gifts. Paul Quinn College received the largest gift in school history from Dallas philanthropist and Paul Quinn supporter Trammell S. Crow. The majority of the $4.4 million dollar gift will be used to help finance the construction of the first new building on the campus in almost 40 years and the rest will be used to support enrollment growth. The new facility will be a 180-bed residential complex that will be known as the Trammell S. Crow Living & Learning Center.

Scheduled to break ground in 2015, the Trammell S. Crow Living & Learning Center ("Crow LLC"), which will contain classroom and community meeting space in addition to student housing, will also include a commitment to sustainable living practices. The Crow LLC will be built overlooking the school's nationally acclaimed WE over Me Farm and with views of the city of Dallas' skyline.

Dallas Mayor Mike Rawlings greeted the news of the gift by remarking that "Dallas is a better place because of trailblazing philanthropists like Trammell S. Crow. His commitment to the work being done at Paul Quinn College represents the type of leadership that has helped make our city great." He continued, "The Trammell S. Crow Living & Learning Center is more than just the first new building in almost 40 years on this campus. It is another beacon of hope and further proof that Paul Quinn College and all of Dallas is headed in the right direction."

"This is a special moment in our institutional history" stated Paul Quinn College President Michael J. Sorrell, President of Paul Quinn College. He noted that "American higher education history is replete with examples of visionary leaders like Trammell Crow who understood the investment needed to create great institutions. Paul Quinn College is thankful that he believes in our work and our future."

Bishop Vashti Murphy McKenzie, the Chairwoman of the Paul Quinn College Board of Trustees expressed the mood of the moment perfectly by saying "this is a joyous occasion that speaks both to fulfilling a need today and a promise for tomorrow. It is truly a wonderful time to be a member of the Paul Quinn College community."

Mrs. Ada Cecilia Collins Anderson presented Huston-Tillotson University with a $3 million gift—the largest gift in the history of the HT—toward the naming of the Sandra Joy Anderson Community Health and Wellness Center. Following her passion of advocating for and empowering young people and championing educational causes, Anderson, age 92, identified Huston-Tillotson University to continue her legacy. Her career accomplishments include overcoming numerous educational and career injustices while personifying a determined spirit that resulted in leadership roles and the creation of civic organizations to empower African Americans, women, and children.

"As a community leader, trailblazer, and champion of civic causes, Mrs. Anderson exemplifies the spirit of the Community Health and Wellness Center which is conceptualized to bring together the community and campus offerings to focus on holistic approaches to health," said HT President and Chief Executive Officer Larry L. Earvin, Ph.D. "We applaud her efforts to rally the community in support of the components of the HT mission."

Anderson graduated from Austin's segregated L.C. Anderson High School. She attended Austin's two predominantly black colleges, Samuel Huston and Tillotson, where she received a degree in home economics in 1941. She also received her master's degree in educational psychology in 1965 from The University of Texas at Austin. While a student at Samuel Huston, Ada met M. Jack "Andy" Anderson Sr. and they married in 1943 and together became leaders in the civil rights movement and in Austin's African American community. They established the Anderson-Wormley real estate and insurance firm, providing affordable housing that empowered the Central Texas African American community.

Dallas Will Be Better if Mike Rawlings Runs for Mayor Again

"I don't know if the man is going to run again or not, but America will not be as good if he doesn't run, and certainly Dallas will be all the better if he does," said Sacramento Mayor Kevin Johnson, a former NBA All-Star and the current president of the mayors organization.

"I want to start by saying a big, Texas-sized THANK YOU to the more than 236 mayors who are here with us today. You represent the best and the brightest from around the country and are the leaders who are driving the change our nation so desperately needs. I'm so glad we have the opportunity to come together at this conference and am so grateful for the USCM." President of U.S. Conference of Mayors, Sacramento Mayor Kevin Johnson.

Dallas Mayor Mike Rawlings has said it was a great opportunity to show off the city. He was especially excited about the international journalists here for the New Cities summit. He wants Dallas to become a global destination, like Paris or New York. The Dallas Convention and Visitors Bureau says the summit generated over 300 global media stories, most of them positive. Officials say that if they had to buy advertising to equate to that type of coverage, it would cost $9.5 million.

The benefits we receive from the organization are clear: It helps Mayors build key relationships with the White House, Congress, and the federal government. It allows us to leverage relationships with the private sector, boosting public/private partnerships. And it brings national exposure and attention to our cities. We owe so much to this great organization, and I've made a pledge as mayor to grow our membership so that we can increase our revenues and grow.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors will take all of these discussions to Capitol Hill. The mayors passed more than 100 resolutions for everything from tax credits for renewable energy to more money for veterans' services. Those resolutions become the mayors' blueprint for lobbying Congress. They believe if they make a lot of noise together they can put pressure on Congress to act.

Dallas: Too Busy Growing To Hate!

THE LIFE REFLECTIONS OF MRS. MERFAY BROOKS 1931-2014

Mrs. Merfay Brooks was born June 20, 1931 to Wilmer and Ocie Gray in Neches, TX. She was the eldest daughter of nine siblings who learned at an early age the value of family. She was raised in Kaufman and Dallas, TX. Professing a love for Christ at an early age, she became a long time member of Good St. Baptist Church of Dallas.

Merfay was a product of Booker T. Washington High School in Dallas where she graduated in January of 1948. She matriculated at Prairie View A&M and Mary Allen College where she received her Bachelor's of Arts in May of 1952, and then her Master of Education from North Texas State University (now University of North Texas) in 1963.

Merfay married Otis Brooks of Dallas on February 8, 1958, a union which lasted until her death and produced two sons, Otis, Jr. and Stephen.

Merfay followed her parents into the education profession. Her career as an elementary school educator began in Kaufman, TX and spanned 4 decades, which included teaching assignments in DISD at Joseph J. Rhodes, Lisbon and R.L. Thornton elementary schools.

Merfay leaves to cherish her memories her husband of 56 years Otis Brooks, sons Otis Brooks, Jr. and Stephen Brooks; six brothers, Wilmer O. Gray, Jr, Brucy C. Gray, Edward W. Gray, Maceo Gray, James H. Gray, and Everette E. Gray; two sisters, Olivia M. Hervey and Mary E. Batts and a host of nieces, nephews, cousins, extended family and friends.

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF MRS. EARLINE ELIZABETH GADSON

Services were held for Earline Elizabeth Gadson on Friday, June 20, 2014 at Golden Gate Funeral Home. She was the first daughter born to the union of James and Rosa Knight Gadson, on September 10, 1934, in Ocala, Florida and died June 10, 2014, at home in Dallas with her family, after a lengthy illness.

As the baby girl of a large family-- her mother having been married two times previously-- from the beginning there were many to pamper little Earline and she enjoyed the attention.

When she became a teenager, her parents moved the family to the Strawberry Capitol of the United States -- Plant City, Florida.

A stylish dresser even as a young child, Earline was a cheerleader and an honor student at Marshall High School. Upon graduation, she bypassed college and followed her older brother, Robert, to New Jersey, where several friends from Florida were already living in Newark. The group was like a close-knit family with many of those relationships lasting over half a century.

Earline immediately went to work because she had big dreams and they included returning home to Florida one day to build her mother a house. Unfortunately shortly after Earline moved to Newark, Mrs. Rosa Knight Gadson was tragically murdered in Plant City.

Maybe it was because she met the love of her life, Joseph Smith, who ironically was also from Plant City; but following the funeral, Earline returned to Newark, where she remained before moving to East Orange.

Those who knew the couple marveled at how Earline doted over her babies: Daryl, Cheryl, Carl -- who died at birth-- and Tracy, who was born to her and Earl Vickers.

In their younger years she worked as a volunteer leader with a 4-H Club, bringing children together, along with hers, in Newark for projects and trips to Coney Island, Wildwood Theme Park and Atlantic City.

Earline was a devoted member of the historic New Hope Baptist Church in Newark, NJ. She worked as a dental hygienist and at Newark Airport for Delta and National Airlines. Her last job was with International Security Systems of New York and New Jersey.

She was a life member of the National Council of Negro Women and an active member of the NAACP, serving as vice president of the New Hope Baptist Church Branch in Newark, New Jersey.

In later years Earline loved going to Atlantic City for "therapy!" She especially enjoyed when her sister Annie Mae, her nephew Nathaniel and his wife Rose, and grandniece Linda would arrive from Tampa, Florida for a vacation of "therapy."

"Mother," as she is affectionately called, like her brothers Curtis and Eddie; loved baseball and was a fan of the Negro League, oftentimes traveling with the Newark Indians. She also loved watching the New York Yankees and the New York Mets or the New York Giants.

In November of 2012, Mother relocated to Dallas and if she wasn't before, she became a Dallas Cowboys fan. But she never forgave Nolan Ryan for the damage he caused when the Texas Rangers played the Yankees.

She became a member of Friendship-West Baptist Church, the church she had worshipped at previously during visits to Dallas.

She also found a place in Oklahoma to continue her "therapy" whenever Patsy was available for the ride!

A scholarship fund has been established in her name and donations can be made to the Earline Elizabeth Gadson Memorial Scholarship Fund, 320 South R.L. Thornton Freeway, Suite 220, Dallas, TX 75203.

Texas Adds 383,100 Jobs in Past 12 Months Over-the-year job growth is largest in nearly 17 years

The Texas economy continued its trend of job growth in May, expanding by 56,400 seasonally adjusted nonfarm jobs. A total of 383,100 jobs were added in the past 12 months, making it the largest over-the-year job increase in Texas in nearly 17 years. Additionally, the state's annual growth rate climbed to 3.4 percent in May, which is the highest it has been since November 2012. Texas consistently ranks among the top states for annual job growth. Texas' seasonally adjusted unemployment rate dropped to 5.1 percent in May, down from 5.2 percent in April.

"Texas employers kept our economy moving with 383,100 jobs added over the year, the largest such increase since September 1997," said Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) Chairman Andres Alcantar. "We continue to work with our workforce and education partners to ensure that Texas workers have the in-demand skills required to bolster this impressive job creation."

Texas employers from all 11 major industries in Texas expanded their payrolls in May. Of those, Education and Health Services expanded the most, adding 12,400 jobs. Mining and Logging posted the highest annual growth rate among the major industries at 7.4 percent.

"It is good news for job seekers when Texas industries grow across the board," said TWC Commissioner Representing Labor Ronny Congleton. "At TWC we have many resources available to job seekers looking to work in high-growth industries. I encourage them to visit their local Workforce Solutions office or seek these opportunities at WorkInTexas.com."

Employment in Trade, Transportation, and Utilities expanded by 11,800 jobs over the month, for a total of 86,300 jobs added in the last 12 months. "Private employers continued to spur the Texas economy forward, adding 48,400 jobs in May and 350,000 jobs over the year for an annual growth rate of 3.7 percent," said TWC Commissioner Representing Employers Hope Andrade.

The Midland Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) had the lowest May unemployment rate in the state at 2.6 percent. The Odessa MSA had the second lowest at 3.2 percent and the Amarillo MSA was third at 3.6 percent (not seasonally adjusted).

DEAR EDITOR:

Dear Editor,

Warmer temperatures are a welcome change after a long, cold winter—but as the mercury rises, it's crucial to protect our animal companions by never leaving them in parked vehicles. Every year, PETA receives dozens of reports of animals suffering and dying in hot, parked cars. Cruelty-to-animals charges are routinely filed in such cases.

It only takes minutes for a parked car to cook an animal alive: On a warm day, even with the windows cracked, the temperature inside a parked car can reach more than 160 degrees. Parking in the shade and/or leaving water in the vehicle won't help. Symptoms of heatstroke include restlessness, excessive thirst, heavy panting, lethargy, lack of appetite and coordination, dark tongue, and vomiting. Dogs can succumb to heatstroke in just 15 minutes, resulting in brain damage or death.

Please, when it's even a little warm outside, never leave any living being in a parked car, even for "just a minute." If you see a dog left in a car, have the owner paged or call 911 immediately—the dog's life depends on it. Visit www.PETA.org to learn more.

Sincerely,
Martin Mersereau, Director

WHEN MORALITY AND POLITICS MEET

By Congresswoman Eddie Bernice Johnson

This year, on July 2, 2014, we will celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. This is a historic event and an achievement that should be commemorated with great pride, humility and deference for the brave men and women whose blood and tears watered the soil of our nation's democracy.

Often times, when we look back in celebration of the Civil Rights Act, we focus on the heroism, leadership, vision and selflessness of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Dr. King's contributions were unparalleled. But, it is often heralded that victory has many fathers. That is especially true when we look back upon the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. This feat would not have possible without the contributions of many great men and women, Black and White, Democrat and Republican, whose names are not heralded by history.

Growing up in the Jim Crow South, his political career depended on his understanding of and respect for convention. His campaign to end discrimination defied conventional wisdom. Because he was from the South, he was believed to be inherently racist, like many of his mentors. But, President Johnson had a servant's heart. His first job after college was as a school teacher in a school attended by Mexican children and in a city that was stricken by poverty. This experience awakened in him a strong belief that helping minorities would benefit all Americans, spiritually and economically.

During a time when the nation was deeply divided and racism served as the nation's deadliest act of terrorism, it required herculean efforts to choose the side of morality.

During his first 20 years in Congress, he opposed civil rights legislation, because the political machine that sent him to Washington was powered by the wealth and power of Southern racism. But as President Johnson watched the foundation of this great nation disintegrated by the grief and anger that resulted from southern horrors, such as lynching, the brutal murder of the four little girls killed in the 16th Street Baptist Church bombing, the devastating assassination of President Kennedy and the mayhem known as Bloody Sunday, he could no longer ignore his moral and spiritual duty to do what his spiritual and moral conscience required: to do good, seek justice and relieve the oppressed.

50 years ago, when he succeeded in his mission, we were fighting for the right to vote, for economic opportunity, financial security for our retired seniors and health care for the poor. It is almost unbelievable that we are fighting for the same rights today. We cannot be complacent and revel in victory. We have to remain vigilant to ensure that we do not travel backwards.

Just as it is true that in the 1960's, our nation was marked by moments of crises: war, poverty and mass social injustice; today, we find ourselves in a comparable state. We met the challenges then. It is time we rise to that challenge once more.

Despite the current climate, when it seems hopeless, when it is especially risky to challenge racism and sexism; and when it appears that we are fighting a lost cause, we must remember that it is patriotic duty to continue the fight. We must fight to honor the legacy of those that fought for us. It is time for elected officials and community leaders to fulfill our duty as soldiers for justice. It is time for you, as citizens, to fulfill your duties by voting.

I will leave you with the words President Johnson spoke in December of 1971, during his final public address: "We have proved that great progress is possible. We know how much still remains to be done. And if our efforts continue, and if our will is strong, and if our hearts are right, and if courage remains our constant companion, then, my fellow Americans, I am confident, we shall overcome."

College-Educated Blacks Have Harder Times than Whites

By Freddie Allen
NNPA Washington Correspondent

Blacks with college degrees continue to fare worse than college-educated Whites in the labor market, according to a new report by the Economic Policy Institute (EPI).

The report titled, "The Class of 2014: The Weak Economy Is Lying Too Many Young Graduates," looked at the job prospects for high school graduates and college graduates during the Great Recession and the current economic recovery.

"Unemployment of young graduates is extremely high today, not because of something unique about the Great Recession and its aftermath that has affected young people in particular," stated the report written by Heidi Shierholz, Alyssa Davis and Will Kimball of EPI. "Rather, it is high because young workers always experience disproportionate increases in unemployment during periods of labor market weakness."

The report said that the unemployment rate for Black high school graduates (17-20 years-old) rose from 30.4 percent in 2007 to 41.2 percent in 2011 and decreased to 34.7 percent. The jobless rate for young, White high school graduates was 13.1 percent in 2007, peaked at 24 percent in 2010, and edged down to 19.4 percent.

Young Black college graduates also suffered high rates of unemployment following the Great Recession. In 2007, the jobless rate for young college-educated Blacks was 8.1 percent, but by 2010, a year after the official end of the recession, that rate ballooned to 20 percent. The report said that the jobless rate for this group of workers has improved to 13.1 percent.

Meanwhile, the unemployment rate for White college graduates never reached double digits, even during the Great Recession.

"Among young, White non-Hispanic college graduates, the unemployment rate was 5.1 percent in 2007, rose to 8.6 percent in 2011, and improved to 8.0 percent," stated the report.

The report said that high unemployment among recent college graduates is not because of a lack of education or skills for available jobs, "rather it stems from weak demand for goods and services, which makes it unnecessary for employers to significantly ramp up hiring."

High school graduates and college graduates also earn less than they did nearly 15 years ago.

"The real (inflation-adjusted) wages of young high school graduates have dropped 10.8 percent, and those of young college graduates have dropped 7.7 percent," stated the report.

That means that, high school graduates lost about $2,500 in annual earnings and young college graduates lost approximately $3,000 since 2000.

Despite the common belief that college students often "shelter in school," waiting until the economy improves, skyrocketing costs associated with higher education and enormous debt force many graduates to seek any work that they can find.

During the 2013-2014 academic year, the average total costs to attend a four-year in-state public school was $22,826. The average costs for a four-year private school was twice that at $44,750.

"From the 1983-1984 enrollment year to the 2012-2013 enrollment year, the inflation-adjusted cost of a four-year education, including tuition, fees, and room and board, increased 125.5 percent for private school and 129.1 percent for public school," the report said. "Median family income only increased 15.6 percent over this period, leaving families and students unable to pay for most colleges and universities in full."

College costs combined with a weak economy means that students that graduate in 2015, 2016, and 2017 will encounter similar high jobless rates and lost earnings.

"They'll never get those lost earnings back, those 10-15 years of reduced earnings," said EPI's Heidi Shierholz. "That's just gone."

She said that the high unemployment that young workers are facing right now is part and parcel of the high unemployment that's going on in the labor market as a whole.

"That means the solutions that will bring the unemployment rate down more broadly are also the same solutions that will bring the unemployment rate of young workers down," she said.

The report recommended restarting long-term emergency unemployment benefits, instituting work sharing programs to avoid layoffs, and allowing earlier access into Social Security and Medicare programs for older workers to improve job prospects for all workers, especially young workers.

The report concluded: "The bottom line is that policies that will generate demand for U.S. goods and services (and therefore demand for workers who provide them), or policies that would spread the total hours of work across more workers, are the keys to giving young people a fighting chance as they enter the labor market during the aftermath of the Great Recession."

Freedom Summer – 50 years

By George E. Curry
NNPA Columnist

The 50th anniversary of Freedom Summer is being commemorated this week in Mississippi and it provides the perfect backdrop to reflect on the transformation of not only Mississippi, then the deadliest state in the nation, but the entire region.

As I have written in the space before, there was a popular joke about Mississippi making the rounds during the height of the Civil Rights Movement. Supposedly, a Chicago seminary student was awakened at 3 a.m. by a voice imploring him: "Go to Mississippi! Go to Mississippi! Go to Mississippi!" The seminary student said, "Lord, you said that you will be with me always, even until the end of the earth. If I go to Mississippi, will you go with me?" The heavenly voice replied, "I'll go as far as Memphis."

Of course, if the Lord were reluctant to go to Mississippi, the chances of a Black surviving there were slim and none. I had just completed my junior year at Druid High School in Tuscaloosa, Ala. in the summer of 1964. Alabama had its own violent history when it came to race relations, but Mississippi was the one state we knew was worse. In fact, whenever a national ranking of any kind came out, we would always say, "Thank God for Mississippi."

Of course, we all awaited the beginning of Freedom Summer, a national mobilization of mostly college students who would descend upon Mississippi in 1964 to help civil rights activists, led by Bob Moses of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), assist Blacks in voter education and voting.

More than 1,000 students, about 90 percent of them White, participated. With so many northern Whites descending on the state, the nation would be watching. And Blacks like me, who grew up under America's version of apartheid, knew that virulent White racists in Mississippi would not go quietly into the dark. They would go into the dark — where they did their most tawdry work — but they wouldn't be quiet about it.

And sure enough, at the outset of Freedom Summer, three civil rights workers — James Chaney, Michael Schwerner and Andrew Goodman — were arrested in Neshoba County by Sheriff Cecil Price, a member of the Ku Klux Klan. That night, they were released. Tipped off about their impending departure, Klansmen abducted the three and murdered them. Their bodies were discovered seven weeks later 15 feet below an earthen dam.

While looking for the three civil rights workers in rivers and swamps, other Black bodies were discovered. One was Herbert Oarsby, a 14-year-old boy who was wearing a Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) T-shirt. The bodies of Henry Hezekiah Dee and Eddie Moore, who had been expelled from Alcorn A&M College for civil rights activities, were also discovered. The remains of five more Black men were found, but never identified.

It wasn't until 1970 that anyone was imprisoned for the slayings of Chaney, Schwerner and Goodman, with six years being the longest time served.

In 1964, only 6.7 percent of Blacks were registered to vote, the lowest in the nation. Today, more than a third of Mississippi's voters are Black and the state has the largest number of Black elected officials in the nation.

But that progress came with a price, with people losing their jobs — and even their lives — simply because they wanted to exercise their constitutional right to vote. The casualties extended beyond the three civil rights workers.

According to the book, Freedom Summer by Doug McAdam, in the summer of 1964 alone:

At least four Blacks from Mississippi were murdered because of their civil rights activities;

Four people were seriously wounded; 80 summer workers were beaten; 1,062 people were arrested; 37 churches were burned or bombed and the homes or businesses of 30 African Americans were bombed or burned.

Visiting college students weren't the only ones responsible for the success of that summer. When Berea College withdrew as a training site for students headed South, Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio, now part of Miami University, stepped forward.

Attorneys volunteered from the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, the National Lawyers Guild and the ACLU. Medical professionals, participating as individuals as well as members of the Medical Committee for Human Rights, also joined the caravans headed to Mississippi.

The level of national support emboldened Black Mississippians, such as Fannie Lou Hamer, to challenge the seating of the all-White Mississippi delegation to the 1964 Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City.

As Attorney Thomas N. Todd likes to remind us, this was done before the existence of Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and other social media.

It's good that civil rights vets are celebrating Freedom Summer this week. But the challenge today is to reignite that passion and sense of commitment. Many of the problems of 1964 are still prevalent today. We need another Freedom Summer, Winter, Fall and Spring.

HOROSCOPES

June 26 - July 2

Aries (March 21-April 19)
 Leave read the All Signs above to get a better picture of what you are dealing with this week, and indeed, have been dealing with for some time. Since December, life has been challenging. (No think!) It's been a time of conflict with friends, spouses and partners. Some of you have been at each other's throats. This week will trigger a final round of tension. (Gulp.) Therefore, it's important to know that by late July, Mars will FINALLY leave Libra and move into Scorpio, thus ending its opposition to you. This will improve all your relationships with others! Keep the hope.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)
 Difficulties with work, especially with coworkers or broken equipment, will not go on forever. (Although it feels like it will because it's been frustrating you since last December.) Hopefully, this week will be the last crunchy moment of conflict with others on the job. Naturally, this won't stop overnight; but it will start to fade as early as next week, and these problems will be greatly reduced by August. Therefore, be patient and cope as best you can until then. Don't do anything drastic. Incidentally, this same frustrating influence can relate to your health as well. Just remember: August brings relief!

Gemini (May 21-June 20)
 The opposition of Mars and Uranus, which occurs this week for the third time (first in December, then in April) signals major changes and influences for you. One of them is related to your children. This influence is an accident-prone time for your kids or children in your care. Another is related to vacations, parties, social events and the entertainment world. This means you have lots of spontaneous fun - unplanned parties and vacations. And some have even had surprise news about babies! This unpreparedness could trigger love affairs because it amps your sex drive. To put it mildly, the last several months have hardly been boring. One more surprise might take place this week or next. Get ready.

Cancer (June 21-July 22)
 The chaotic influence of Mars, especially aggravated by Uranus in December, April and this week, has created family conflicts in your home and family life. It has also introduced enough increased activity and insanity, it makes you want to pull your hair out. All this has been beyond your control. No one can really be faulted per se. It's just what it is. The main thing to know is that in a few weeks, things will calm down and by August/September, your life will return to normal - whatever that means. Generally normal is what we do and abnormal is what other people do, right, Billy Bob?

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Last week I advised Leos to keep a low profile for the next month. (This is worth repeating.) Last week, I advised Leos to keep a low profile for the next month. (You get it.) The Mars/Uranus opposition that I refer to in All Signs above, makes you argumentative, impulsive, energetic, aggressive and ready to explode at a moment's notice. It can also be accident-prone; and it can introduce weird, unexpected happenings into your daily world. "Like whaaat?" Let's not dwell on this because it's almost over, although the next two weeks are definitely an accident-prone time for you! Stay well because you have so much to look forward to when Jupiter enters your sign mid July. That's just 23 sleep!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 In the All Signs above, I refer to the last opposition of Mars and Uranus that will take place this week. The first was in December, the second was in April, and this week is the last, until a brief encounter in December 2015. What this has done and continues to do is shake up your earnings, cash flow and financial picture. (Ouch.) It has made you spend erratically, as well as work in spurts to earn money. Although it has given you energy in financial matters, it is more of a pain than a gain. Too unpredictable! Once again, guard your possessions against loss or theft. Look for ways to find money and not lose it! Ka-ching!

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 Well, hear you are, going through this most unusual experience of Mars in your sign for eight months. In a way, it's been good because it makes you energetic, forthright, direct and willing to fight for what you want. (Awright!) Unfortunately, in December, April and again this week, the opposition of Mars to Uranus, is just a bit too much. In other words, you can't keep your shirt on if you need to get something off your chest. This means you've been too much to handle from the point of view of others, especially partners, spouses and close friends. (No doubt they will say read that part out loud again.) But hey, this crazy energy will be over in a month. Use it as best you can.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 Your focus on your love life shows promise, and chances to travel and explore, along with opportunities in publishing, the media, medicine, the law and higher education look great - you have gone through a rough patch since last December. Right? It's as if hidden forces behind the scenes are conspiring against you. They certainly created interruptions and glitches to your job, and perhaps even your heart. But you're coping! Bravo! This week another glitch will emerge but you will persevere because this insanity is winding down now. And by August, you will be King on the Road! "Pardon my dust!"

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 Your focus on shared property, taxes, debt, inheritances and dealing with the values and wealth of others continues. (Ortutted!) Close partnerships and friendships are cozy and will continue to be so in the next few weeks. Yes, you can hear the "but!" coming, can't you? This week, once again, some kind of conflict with a friend or member of a group will explode. You will be frustrated and so might they. This could create problems in romantic involvements. It can even be an accident-prone time for your kids so be aware of this and be vigilant. But it will mean a shift in your goals simply because you have no choice. And you hate it when you have no choice. Happiness is having alternatives.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Remember to get more rest because you need this right now. And remember to observe partnerships and relationships because you can learn a lot in the next few weeks while the Sun is opposite your sign. Be patient at work because silly errors and goofy mistakes in communications are unavoidable. (Since you are a perfectionist, this will irk you.) However, be careful with your ambitious efforts because something might trip up or send things sideways. You've been dealing with this unpredictable energy since December, so you know what I mean. Avoid conflict with authority figures because they will be explosive. This includes authority figures within your family as well. By August, life starts to look better!

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 You're working hard to get as organized as possible. You need this right now to feel on top of your game. Nevertheless, vacations, parties, romantic adventures, sports events and playful times with children continue to be sources of fun. (Thank Gawd!) What has been most frustrating, since December, has been the element of the unpredictable. Ha! You know whereof I speak. Accidents, crazy situations, cancelled travel plans and bizarre setbacks have been a plague to you. Get ready because bizarre happenings once again will occur this week - but after that, things will start to wind down. (For at least 18 months!) Even insanity has to take a rest.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)
 Your focus on pleasure, playful activities with children, sports events, romantic adventures, the arts and vacations will continue to bless you this year. Yay me! This is a fabulous time for fun and romance - no question. It's also a great time to redecorate at home and entertain. (No doubt relatives you haven't seen for a while will be back in the picture. Nevertheless, there is one major speed bump this week. This speed bump concerns cash flow, earnings, finances and anything related to inheritances, insurance matters and shared property. Steady as she goes as you ride these tall waves. Once you're through this - you will have survived.

Rev. Johnny C. Smith, Pastor - Mount Moriah Missionary Baptist Church

We come now to a psalm that is addressed to Solomon as the writer. This psalm is referred to as a royal psalm. Psalm 72 looks in anticipation to the time when Jesus Christ will reign in righteousness, justice and peace during the Millennium. In Isaiah 11:1-2, 4, Isaiah describes the coming of Jesus Christ as He rules in the Millennium, for those verses

"A PSALM OF ANTICIPATION OF GOD'S KINGDOM" PSALM 72:1-20

read, "And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots: And the spirit of the LORD shall rest upon Him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the LORD; But with righteousness shall He judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and He shall smite the earth: with the rod of His mouth, and with the breath of His lips shall He slay the wicked."

The Messianic reign of Christ will be characterized by harmony among the animals (Isaiah 11:6-7) and even in creation (Romans 8:18-22). The Millennium kingdom will usher in a time of peace and justice because Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, will reign. In verses 1-4, the psalmist begins this psalm with a prayer, asking that God would grant a king who would judge righteously; and in judging righteously, peace would prevail. The king's reign will be characterized as follows: "He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor" (v. 4).

As the king reigns in righteousness, his rule will cause the righteous to prosper (vv. 5-7). Verse 7 states, "In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth." The psalmist declared that the dominion of his kingdom will be extensive and recognized by all kings (vv. 8-11). Verse 8 begins with his dominion being from "sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth," and verse 11 acknowledges that "Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him."

His dominion would be recognized because He is a defender of the poor and needy (vv. 12-14). Consolation is found as "He shall spare the poor and needy, and shall save the souls of the needy" (v. 13). In recognition of his righteous reign, gifts will be given to him (vv. 15-17) even the gold of Sheba shall be given to him and prayer shall be made continually. Ultimately, God's name will be extolled (vv. 18-20). As the final verses state, "Blessed be the LORD God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. And blessed be his glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with His glory; Amen, and Amen" (vv. 19-20).

May God Bless!

A Little Bit of Faith: God is Good

By Colleen White

If you have ever been to church, you may have heard the pastor, a church member, or the entire church say, "God is good, all the time God's good!" If you have, then you know that when the church says it in unison, it's as if you're listening to a song. Thus, when we sing praises unto God, it's like a perfume to His nostrils. God likes when we acknowledge Him and His goodness, grace, and mercy.

The Bible says in the book of Psalm, "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord, and He delights in his way" (Psalm 37:23).

As we learn to obey God, we will begin to take the next step of obedience. It will not be so difficult for us the next time. Learning how to be obedient to God helps us to walk with Him.

If you are a follower of Christ, you want to learn how to walk with God. All of us must learn to take baby steps. When we take baby steps, we learn how to take bigger steps as we go along. Then when we say as a church in unison, "God is good, all the time God's good!" He will be more pleased with us because we are learning to walk in obedience to Him.

So this week, let us all take a step toward obedience to God. Do you think you'll give it a try? I know I will. Amen? Amen.

MY DAY: PSTYLE SPYING

BY DR. J. ESTER DAVIS

Downtown Dallas - The Cash Family- 1936 James Daniel Cash, Merita Cash and 6-year Old, former Grand Master Edwin B. Cash.

and party for Joyce Foreman, over to the NBC Women's Luncheon, with Pamela Daniels, Chair (. . . and thanks again for having me on the program) who eloquently mastered a 'first ladies fashion show' . . . of just WOW!!! people. The week ended with the celebrated fashions of Mitsu Ishikawa and Gadol Wilson, the awesome Konjo, an African Fashion Designer at the Gallery Noir in the Dallas Design District. Cheryl Edwards, founder, hosted the 10th Annual "Sister's Gift" there, honoring nine "Women of Unsung Courage". Honoree, full-figure model and spokesman Debra Jones, elaborated on the question of why do you choose to serve "this" population of people. "Sister's Gift" is a renown HIV-AIDS program. The honoree, on behalf of all the awardees, calmly replied that " people always remember how you make them feel".

What an appropriate closing to style-spy week. Whatever your purpose, do it with style and effervescence.

TWO HBCU SCHOOLS RECEIVE MILLION DOLLAR GIFTS

Ada Anderson has many firsts in her career such as serving on the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women and as the first African American professional at the Texas Employment Commission during John Connally's term as governor. In 2004, Anderson was awarded the Leadership in Civil Rights Award by the LBJ Library and LBJ School of Public Affairs. The award was created to recognize men and women who helped enhance the rights of all Americans. She also served as an Austin Community College Trustee and Advisory Council member of the UT College of Education Foundation. She served on the Board of Directors of the Girl Scouts, and the Citizen's Advisory Committee of the Travis County Juvenile Board. She was Chair of the Board of Directors for the Laguna Gloria Art Museum, is a founding member of the Austin Lyric Opera, and Trustee for the Long Center for the Performing Arts. She founded LEAP (Leadership Enriching Arts Program) for African American children who were less fortunate and gave them exposure to the arts. She established the Austin chapter of Jack and Jill, America, Inc., a leadership and service organization; and is a charter member of the Alpha Nu Sorority, Incorporated. The Andersons had two children, M. Jack Anderson Jr., who died at 40 in a swimming accident, and Sandra Joy Anderson Baccus, who died at 65 near Atlanta, GA, where she lived and worked. Designating the gift to HT's health and wellness initiative to honor her daughter, continues her legacy. Ada Anderson served as President of the Austin-Travis County Mental Health Association and served on the Saint David's Foundation Board. Raising the immediate need for African American mental health physicians in Central Texas, HT officials implemented the 21st Century Solutions-Based Listening Tour with a team of medical professionals prepared to address local disparities. The CHWC is planned as a $35 million complex to serve the medical needs of HT students and faculty, and underserved populations throughout Central Texas. Ada Anderson's gift supports the University's efforts to raise disparities in mental health care services within the Central Texas African American population as a community issue. Huston-Tillotson University has partnered with Austin Travis County Integral Care (ATCIC), Austin/Travis County Health and Human Services (HHSD), a Federally Qualified Health Clinic (FQHC), and other key stakeholders to provide mental and behavioral health practitioners committed to servicing a diverse population that has been absent of minority caregivers and service providers. In addition, the City of Austin, recognizing the health disparities in Travis County for African American residents, endorsed the HT initiative with a resolution and support. One of "America's Leading Black Doctors" according to Black Enterprise Magazine, William Lawson, M.D., Professor and Chairman of the Department of Psychiatry at Howard University College of Medicine, led a two-day lecture and dialogue to reinforce the importance of HT's initiative on community health and wellness. "HT's newly erected Community Health and Wellness Center with its gymnasium, classroom, and health services components will strategically bring together the community and campus offerings to focus on holistic approaches to health—specifically in the areas of recreation, evaluation, education, and human performance. The three pronged approach of patient care, research, and community interventions will significantly improve the environment of care for the minority residents of East Austin," Earvin concluded.

Huston-Tillotson University, Austin's first institution of higher education, offers Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees in 20 areas of study. The historically black university is affiliated with The United Methodist Church and the United Church of Christ.

THE WHITE HOUSE MY BROTHER'S KEEPER INITIATIVE REACHES DALLAS

PASTOR DR. FREDERICK D. HAYNES, III TO LAUNCH INTERN AND LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

Thrive Intern and Leadership Program is hosting a press conference at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, June 26 to announce that over 30 employers in the Dallas area have hired nearly 100 African-American boys for a 6-week intern and professional development program. The presser will also feature nationally known leaders who will speak to the Thrive participants during a two day Leadership and Development Institute. The institute runs 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. June 25th and 26th.

Dr. Frederick D. Haynes, III recently stood with several organizations earlier this year when President Obama announced the $200 million, five-year initiative to create job opportunities for high school African-American and Latino boys. According to a recent report from NPR, "Is The Deck Stacked Against Black Boys In America," President Obama challenged hundreds of organizations to invest in our youth by working in the community to create job and internship opportunities and later recognized the work done by Dr. Haynes with the Thrive Program during a press conference in April.

Dr. Michael Eric Dyson, Robbie Tolan, Tim Brown, Bethel Johnson, Community Leaders, Sponsors and Partners will join Dr. Haynes for the press conference on Thursday, June 26 at 12:30pm. Media outlets will have an opportunity to hear how in 90 days, the Thrive program has collaborated with a community of business owners, corporations and volunteers to invest in the future of African American male youth.

"We believe employment, mentorship and professional development are giant steps to cure a multitude of ills," said Pastor Haynes. "We are teaching young men to lead, to follow - and most importantly how to work and be mentored."

Five big reasons to consider
Black & Clark Funeral Home

- 1. We work harder to earn your business. We can't afford to provide anything less than impeccable service, or to leave you with less than the best impression possible.
- 2. You're not just our client, you're our boss. We don't lose sight of who we're working for. After all, you're the one we answer to.
- 3. We arrange funerals, we don't sell them. It is our responsibility to honor your wishes and respect your budget.
- 4. We like meeting families, not goals. Like you, we are a part of this community supporting our neighbors when they need us.
- 5. We spend time with you. Arranging a fitting tribute is important to you, and you don't deserve to be rushed.

LA COCINA

The secret ingredient in a thriving community.

In San Francisco, 41 go-getting entrepreneurs get up and go to a kitchen called La Cocina. This unique business incubator has helped these individuals kick-start their culinary ambitions and financial independence. The chefs bring the talent. Wells Fargo helps fund the tools. And together we dish up home grown jobs and small businesses to nourish the greater community. Little by little, we can do a lot. Because small is huge.

Visit www.wellsfargo.com/stories to see how big small can be.

Together we'll go far
