J.W. Ray, A Historic DISD School Lest We Forget"

The J.W. Ray Librarian, Mrs. Barbara Willis, a Retired DISD Librarian, goes beyond measure to instill in students a love of books-Reading, Listening, and Learning. On February 28th she coordinated the: DISD Read Across Dallas" activity celebrating Dr. Seuss' birthday

For 58 years, a supreme court-sanctioned public policy of separate but equal facilities for races prevailed in the school of the United States of America. The Dallas Independent School District provided three facilities for Negroes in the area called "North Dallas", which today is part of the Arts District and Zip code 75204. The schools were J. W. Ray, grades 1-3, B.F. Darrell, grades 4-8, and Booker T. Washington, grades 9-12.

Public schools have undergone many monumental changes since the 1960's but contrary to the myth of "genetic inferiority", students at J.W. Ray have accomplished significant achievements. Parents and educators then knew that reading well was the key to academic success although there was no library in the school.

The J.W. Ray librarian, Ms. Barbara L. Willis, goes beyond measure to instill in students a love of books, reading, listening, and learning. On February 28th, Ray students welcomed guest readers who participated in the DISD's Read Across Dallas" celebration of Dr. Seuss' birthday. The staff and students were asked to don Afro-centric attire and attend a Black History celebration to commemorate Black History Month and the black intellectual inroads in public education.

Today, the school is on the National Historical Registry and students at J.W. Ray continue to excel under the excellent leadership of their principal, Onjaleke Brown.

'Dallas' Too Busy Growing To Hate

DEAR EDITOR:

Dear Editor,

A series of long-running studies have identified a troubling racial gap in breast cancer mortality rates. Research suggests that African-American women are on average 40 percent more likely to die from breast cancer than Caucasian women.

The findings are jarring for all women, since we all have a vested interest in defeating breast cancer together. I, too, am considered high-risk and reducing that risk is important to me. That's one of the reasons I'm vegan.

According to Dr. Jane Plant, a British scientist, cancer survivor, and author of No-Dairy Breast Cancer Prevention Program, "Undoubtedly, the best anti-cancer diet would be to go completely vegan." Meat and dairy products are full of cholesterol, saturated fat, excess protein, hormones, and other harmful substances that increase breast cancer risk. But a vegan diet maximizes intake of foods that help us fight cancer—fiber-packed grains and beans and phytochemical-packed fruits and vegetables.

I intend to arm myself against breast cancer with every weapon I've got. Going vegan is one of the best decisions I've made, and I hope other women will join me. For a free vegetarian/vegan starter kit, please visit www.PETA.org.

Sincerely,
Michelle Kretzer

By Congresswoman Eddie Bernice Johnson

I want to take this opportunity to thank each of you who voted in the recent primary election. Your commitment to the voting process is crucial to the concept of American Democracy, in which those who cast a ballot select candidates they believe will best represent their interests in the halls of government.

I am personally honored to have been chosen by the citizens of the 30th Congressional

THANK YOU FOR YOUR VOTE!

District to become your candidate in the general election in November. With God's graces, and your continued support, I will be victorious, and will return to Washington as your voice in the 114th session of Congress.

I believe that as an elected official, I am engaged in a "sacred partnership" with those who cast their ballots for me. That partnership also includes those who may have voted for other candidates. As a Democrat, I have a fundamental belief, and enduring commitment to the values of equality and diversity. They have guided me since I first entered public service.

History teaches that anyone who does not practice those principles will not succeed. As Democrats we must be a party of inclusion, and the moment that we abandon that thinking, our party is doomed to failure.

It is my hope that in November, voters in Texas and those across the country will elect the right candidates so that the Democrat Party will be able to regain a majority in the House of Representatives, and maintain its majority in the Senate.

A democratically controlled House will work with a democratically led Senate to pass legislation that addresses the issues of immigration reform, a livable wage for all working people, full-employment, climate control and many others.

A Congress controlled by Democrats will also be able to rebuff any further attempts to repeal the Affordable Care Act, which has provided health care insurance to millions of uninsured Americans, and has removed control of our health care system from the hands of insurance companies that have only been interested in greater financial profit, not the well-being of hardworking Americans.

Two of the issues that we must face are voter suppression and redistricting. We must resist any efforts to retard the progress that we have made in voting rights.

This year, our community and our country will celebrate the monumental strides that were made during the administration of President Lyndon Baines Johnson, a Texan who believed in equality and inclusion.

We must not allow those who wish to roll back or distort what we have accomplished to be victorious. We must continue to work together, and be ever vigilant in our efforts. This is among the things you have elected me to do, and I promise that I shall not disappoint you.

President Obama's Surprising Jobs Record

recounts before adding: "Actually, the black unemployment rate is lower now than when Obama took office, and the gap between the races is below the historical average. The black unemployment rate has averaged more than double the white rate for several decades."

Like most believable lies, Paul's charges are wrapped in partial truths.

"It is true that the black unemployment rate for November was double the white unemployment rate. The rate in November was 12.5 percent for blacks and 6.2 percent for whites, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Unfortunately, this is not new," FactCheck.org noted.

However, it pointed out, "The current 12.5 percent unemployment rate for blacks is unquestionably high. But by historical standards the current black unemployment rate is consistent with the average from 1972 to 2004, and the ratio of black-to-white unemployment rates is actually below the historical average."

The deeper the researchers dug, the stronger they made Obama's case.

"We looked at the average rate of unemployment for blacks and whites in the first 58 months of the last four presidents who were reelected to a second term: Obama, George W. Bush, Bill Clinton and Ronald Reagan. (We averaged the monthly unemployment rates from the first February in office to the first November in their second term)," FactCheck.org stated.

And what did they find?

"Obama had the lowest average ratio (1.9), followed by Bush (2.1), Clinton (2.2), and Reagan (2.3)."

Seeking to further clarify, researchers acknowledged, "Paul was talking about the November unemployment rates and ratio—not the 58-month average unemployment rate and ratio—but even by that measure the black-to-white unemployment ratio is lower under Obama (2) than it was under Reagan (2.6), Clinton (2.4) and Bush (2.5) at this point in their second terms."

Further dismantling Paul assertions, FactCheck.org stated, "Paul also said that the black unemployment rate 'hasn't budged' under Obama, but it has. It reached a high of 16.8 percent in March 2010 and dropped to a low of 12.5 percent in November—lower than the 12.7 percent rate when Obama took office. That wasn't the case for two of his recent predecessors, Reagan and Bush."

"Under Reagan, the black unemployment rate went up a full percentage point from 14.6 percent in January 1981 to 15.6 percent in November 1985—even as the white unemployment rate fell from 6.7 percent to 5.9 percent.

Under Bush, the rates went up for both blacks and whites. But it went up faster for blacks, from 8.2 percent in January 2001 to 10.6 percent in November 2005—the biggest increase in the black unemployment rate of any of the four presidents at that point in their second terms. The white unemployment rate went up more than a half percentage point, from 3.6 percent to 4.3 percent."

Paul is a likely Republican presidential candidate in 2016. Last week, one of his chief rivals for the White House, Rep. Paul Ryan (R-Wisc.), created a controversy when he said on former Secretary of Education Bill Bennett's radio show: "We have got this tailspin of culture, in our inner cities in particular, of men not working and just generations of men not even thinking about working or learning the value and the culture of work, and so there is a real culture problem here that has to be dealt with."

The comment was immediately criticized by Rep. Barbara Lee (D-Calif.) as "a thinly veiled racial attack and cannot be tolerated."

Ryan refused to apologize for his comments, saying in a statement later, "After reading the transcript of yesterday morning's interview, it is clear that I was inarticulate about the point I was trying to make. I was not implicating the culture of one community—but of society as a whole."

Whether a brazen affront such as Ryan's comment about "inner city" Black men or Rand Paul's more subtle attack on Obama's record dealing with unemployment, the Republican Party keeps proving it has done nothing to deserve the support of African Americans.

Health Crisis is Real

while the 'cards' may play out in your favor, they also may not.

My friend has to wait till she gets her health insurance because, like many other workers, she is employed by a company that does not offer health insurance. They do not offer much in the way of time-off either. It is all part of a larger pattern. Each day that passes, workers find that they have to cover more and more of what, at one point, people took for granted. No health insurance; no pension; no sick time; little, if any, vacation. It starts to feel like the days prior to the advent of labor unions.

My friend did not expect a life crisis. Why should she have? She has been in great health. Full of energy. Yet, now she is worried and because of the way that the system works, each moment that goes by may be a moment necessary in diagnosing a potential life crisis. While it may it turn out to be nothing, she will not know until she gets medical attention. It is not, however, something that would be treated in an emergency room.

Yet society says it is fine for us to go forward this way. Some politicians say that there is no need for any sort of national health insurance. That it costs too much for society. But I have to ask: What is the cost to us all when people play Russian roulette with their health because they do not have the sort of coverage that most advanced societies on the planet possess?

The Affordable Care Act (so-called Obamacare) did not go nearly far enough. Too many concessions to the insurance companies. We need single payer health care ("Medicare for All") where every individual is guaranteed government-funded health insurance. But for now my friend has the chance of getting some health insurance, but at her own expense since her employer is focused on profit margins rather than a healthy and productive workforce.

So, she keeps waiting and the clock keeps ticking.

One heck of a way for a supposedly civilized society to operate.

Although unemployment rates are unacceptably high, especially for African Americans, President Obama has done a better job improving the jobless rate than most critics are willing to concede. That becomes abundantly clear when reading FactCheck.org's dismantling of Senator Rand Paul's attack on the president's unemployment record. Just as he was caught plagiarizing, Paul has been caught again, this time for providing misleading information about Obama's accomplishments.

FactCheck.org, a project of the Annenberg Public Policy Center at the University of Pennsylvania, is a nonpartisan, nonprofit "consumer advocate" for voters that aims to reduce the level of deception and confusion in U.S. politics.

"THE PSALMIST'S THIRST FOR GOD" PSALM 63:1-11

Jacob's trouble (Jeremiah 30:6), the great Tribulation Period (Revelation chapters 6-19).

Because of the wicked scheme of his enemies, David prayed earnestly for the Lord's protection as he pleads, "Hear my voice, O God, in my prayer: preserve my life from fear of the enemy. Hide me from the secret counsel of the wicked; from the insurrection of the workers of iniquity:" (vv. 11-2). As believers in this age of grace, we definitely need the Lord's protection in our communities, for Psalm 127:1 states, "Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain." It is a comforting fact to know that we are always under God's steadfast surveillance. In verses 3-6, David revealed the malicious attacks of the wicked, plots that revealed the nature of who they were. Observe their tactics in verse 5, "They encourage themselves in an evil matter: they commune of laying snares privately; they say, Who shall see them?"

Although they may scheme and be cunning, God will bring their plans to naught (vv. 7-8). Their end is revealed in verse 7, "But God shall shoot at them with an arrow; suddenly shall they be wounded."

The punishment of the Lord on the wicked will have a profound effect on the righteous, resulting in the righteous trusting and praising God (vv. 9-10). The righteous resolve in verse 10 states, "The righteous shall be glad in the LORD, and shall trust in Him; and all the upright in heart shall glory."

In conclusion, David knew that the Lord was his steadfast deliverer, which prompted him to praise the Lord, for Psalm 71:4-6 says, "Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked, out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man. For thou art my hope, O Lord GOD: thou art my trust from my youth. By thee have I been held up from the womb; thou art He that took me out of my mother's bowels: my praise shall be continually of thee." Just as David, and because the Lord has delivered us, we need to praise Him.

May God Bless!

Missionary Baptist Church

The historical background of this psalm of lament is unknown. Psalm 64 transcends the experience of David and looks prophetically to the time when a godly remnant will experience the time of H"I waited patiently for the Lord; He turned to me and heard my cry" (Psalm 40:1). Have you ever been in a situation which you needed to have an answer right away? Instead, you had to wait and wait, and wait. Most of the time, however, we don't wait patiently for God to answer. Often we want to rush God and place Him on our time schedule.

But waiting on the Lord can help our faith to grow. God wants us to live by faith and not by sight. The only way we can grow is when we are unable to see how our situation will change. It is during these difficult situations, that we find ourselves in we begin to really lean on our Heavenly father.

It's easy to praise God when things are going well. It is more difficult to praise Him when things are not going according to plan. Sometimes we have to wait years in order to get a response from God about something we have been praying about. For example, King David waited for many years before he was crowned king. David learned to wait on God. David said in Psalm 27, "Wait for the Lord; be strong and take heart and wait for the Lord" (Psalm 27: 14).

6th Annual Southwest Black Fine Arts Show 2014

A "Conversation" of Black Artists in America Today

Presented by Frank and Judy Frazier

Insightful, highly anticipated art show attracts artist, galleries, collectors, educators, curators and families from North Texas and across the nations.

The 6th Annual Southwest Black Fine Arts Show presented by Frank and Judy Frazier will be held April 12, 2014 in historic Oak Cliff.

The Southwest Black Fine Arts Show (SBFAS) was established to present a quality experienced for artist, collectors, galleries, educators, fine art professionals, and anyone interested in the cultural aesthetics of black fine art. The annual show is the brainchild of international renowned artist-mentor Frank Frazier, who is committed to making known the cultural legacy and significant contributions of black artist in America.

The focus of the show is the presentation of original art produced primarily by artist of African-American and African descent. It is the goal of the show to make this event an information and destination point where collectors come to buy quality black art and to be a part of the conversations that impact the black art and artist.

To better, accommodate the growth of the show and the needs of the artist The Southwest Black Fine Art Show will be held at Events In The Cliff, 2600 Zang Blvd., Dallas, Texas 75224 on Saturday April 12, 2014 - 10 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.

Brandon Weeden Agrees to Two-year Deal with Dallas Cowboys

The Dallas Cowboys have agreed with former Cleveland Browns quarterback Brandon Weeden on a two-year deal, a source told ESPN.com.

The 2012 Cleveland Browns first-round pick was released by the Browns last week. The former Oklahoma State quarterback will be the third quarterback on the roster along with veterans Tony Romo and Kyle Orton.

Weeden will be the fifth former Oklahoma State player on the Dallas roster, joining linebacker Orie Lemon, receiver Dez Bryant, running back Joseph Randle and kicker Dan Bailey.

FUNERAL HOMES

Five big reasons to consider

Black & Clark Funeral Home

1. We work harder to earn your business. We can't afford to provide anything less than impeccable service, or to leave you with less than the best impression possible.
2. You're not just our client, you're our boss. We don't lose sight of who we're working for. After all, you're the one we answer to.
3. We arrange funerals, we don't sell them. It is our responsibility to honor your wishes and respect your budget.
4. We like meeting families, not goals. Like you, we are a part of this community supporting our neighbors when they need us.
5. We spend time with you. Arranging a fitting tribute is important to you, and you don't deserve to be rushed.

MR. CLYDE L. (CHUCK) WILLIAMS 1929- 2014

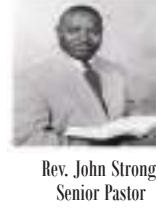

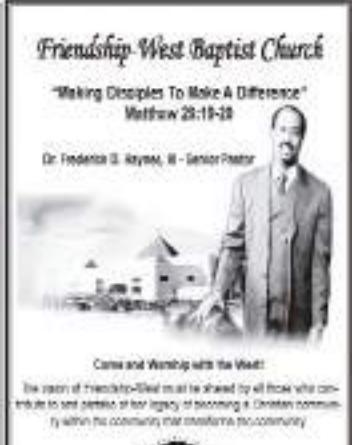

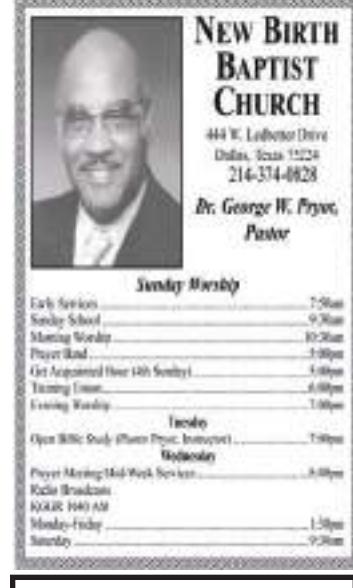

Chuck was a person many think of as a quiet man, but he was a magnificent man. One whom on one ever left without learning something new or given a new way to think about any given subject, ranging from politics, sports, history, etc. this man had a wealth of knowledge that he loved to share.

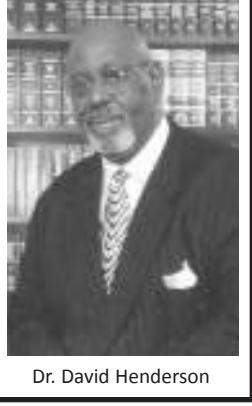

He left to cherish his life: a loving, devoted, dedicated wife of 56 years, Ada L. Williams; son, Adrian D. Williams of Dallas, Texas; sister, Erma Baylor (Orlando) of Washington DC; three lovely granddaughters, Crystal, Aire'ale, and Amber of Dallas; nieces, nephews, cousins, and a host of other relatives and friends.
