Chicago closing 54 schools in face of $1 billion deficit

In Chicago, 30,000 kids will be moved to different schools: most of them black, on the city's South and West sides. And Chicago's not the only city where budget problems are forcing big changes in the public schools. NBC's Rehema Ellis reports.

BE KIND! Never speak harsh words. Be kind and gentle with your tongue. For it has been said that the tongue can be like a sword. Think long before you criticize your neighbor. Your tongue can be nasty. Living is one of the most beautiful things in the world. But the tongue can kill!

MetroPCS Dallas Marathon Donates $500,000 to Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Children

The Dallas Marathon board of directors on Wednesday, March 20, 2013, presented a $500,000 check to the race's primary beneficiary, Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Children (TSRHC). Since the selection of TSRHC as the race's beneficiary in 1997, the marathon has contributed more than $3.3 million to the hospital.

"We are pleased to provide another substantial donation to Texas Scottish Rite, a hospital that does such important work in our community, region and state," said Kevin Snyder, chairman of the Dallas Marathon board of directors. "The Dallas Marathon board looks forward to continuing our strong partnership with the hospital in 2013 and beyond."

TSRHC is a specialty pediatric orthopaedic hospital that provides the highest-quality treatment for orthopaedic conditions, certain related neurological disorders, and learning disorders such as dyslexia. Leaders in the field of pediatric orthopaedics, TSRHC physicians treat conditions such as scoliosis, clubfoot, hand disorders, hip disorders and limb-length differences regardless of the family's ability to pay. The contribution from the Dallas Marathon board will go toward general patient care at TSRHC.

"Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Children is truly grateful for the tremendous support of the Dallas Marathon board members, sponsors and friends," said Bob Walker, president and chief executive officer of TSRHC. "The Dallas Marathon board shares a commitment to quality and creating the best possible experience for the participants, which goes hand in hand with the hospital's mission of providing the highest-quality medical care for a patient family when they arrive at the hospital. In accepting this contribution, the hospital celebrates the hard work and commitment of so many people who helped make the 2012 MetroPCS Dallas Marathon the best race yet."

Attending Wednesday's ceremony were Dallas Marathon board members, sponsors, individual fundraisers, and TSRHC representatives and patient champions. The hospital's youth patient champions serve as ambassadors leading up to race weekend and at the race itself, which is held annually in December.

Funds contributed to TSRHC by the Dallas Marathon are from race revenues, corporate sponsorships, online fundraising and individual gifts. The Dallas Marathon is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization.

Kevin Snyder presided over the awards ceremony alongside Walker. In addition to awarding the $500,000 donation, the marathon board presented the Victory Award for Excellence to Peter Snell, the Spirit Award to Tal Morrison and the Volunteer of the Decade Award to Eileen Lavine.

The Victory Award honors a member of the running community for demonstrating the value of physical fitness and having a positive effect on health and fitness through outstanding effort, determination, commitment and courage. Peter Snell, originally from New Zealand, has won Olympic gold medals in addition to setting several world records in running.

Tal Morrison founded the Dallas White Rock Marathon and Dallas Running Club (formerly known as the Cross Country Club of Dallas). The Spirit Award recognizes a local running hero who inspires others to make a difference in their lives through the sport of running.

The Volunteer of the Decade Award was presented to Eileen Lavine to honor her continuing work on the Dallas Marathon Health & Fitness Expo.

A Pope of the People

By Congresswoman Eddie Bernice Johnson

The selection of former Cardinal Jorge Mario Bergoglio of Argentina as the new leader of the world's one billion Catholics is a welcomed event to those of us who believe that a central part of faith is work that uplifts people who are economically burdened and bruised.

By all accounts from those who are familiar with him and his work, the new pope is a profound intellectual who has avoided the regal trappings of office. Instead, he lived in a simple apartment and traveled on public transportation while a senior church official in Argentina.

Once selected he quickly took the name of Saint Francis of Assisi, who was known for his work with people who had little wealth, but great faith. Legend has it that once while praying he heard a voice that said "go Francis and repair my house."

Born in 1182, Saint Francis founded the Franciscan order whose members were devoted to the service of others, particularly those who found themselves in need. His life was one that many priests throughout the history of the church have attempted to emulate for its depth of belief and its vast charity.

A fan of soccer in his native country, Pope Francis refused to be driven in a chauffeured limousine and prepared his own meals. He is the first Jesuit Pope and is also the first non-European Pope in 1200 years.

I believe that Pope Francis will be inclusive, that he will seek more diversity in the leadership of the church and that he will place greater emphasis on the development of the faith in South America and Africa, two continents where the church's population continues to grow.

According to the Pew Research Center, the five countries with the highest numbers of Catholics are Brazil (126 m), Mexico (96 m), the Philippines (75.5 m), the United States (75.3 m) and Italy (49 m). There are 31 million Catholics in Argentina, the Pope's land of birth. Thirty-nine percent of the world's Catholics live in Latin America and the Caribbean. No other part of the world has a larger percentage.

While serving as a Cardinal in Argentina, Pope Francis spontaneously washed and kissed the feet of twelve patients ravaged with HIV/AIDS during a hospital visit. He said to those with him that he was not one to forget the "sick and the poor." Certainly, he will prove himself to be a pope of the people.

ST. JOHN 20:1-10 - CHRIST'S TRIUMPHANT VICTORY OVER DEATH

Rev. Johnny C. Smith, Pastor – Mount Moriah Missionary Baptist Church

The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the prominent theme in this section of the Apostle John's presentation, for without the resurrection of Christ, the grand.

The gospel message would indeed be incomplete (I Corinthians 15:1-4). In chapter 20 of John's presentation, he records the various appearances of the Saviour after He was raised from the dead; thus, these appearances confirmed that Christ indeed had emerged from the grave in triumphant glory!

This same theme of Christ's triumphant victory over sin, death, and the grave dominated the powerful preaching of the Apostles in the book of Acts (Acts 2:24-36; 3:15; 4:10; 5:30; 10:40; 13:34). As I contemplated while reading this chapter, one serious prevailing thought brought gratitude to my heart: "I am grateful that all members of the blessed Trinity were engaged in the resurrection of Christ (Romans 6:4; St. John 10:17-18; Romans 8:11). It is awfully instructive that chapter 20:1 begins with the reference to "the first day of the week". Christ's resurrection on the "first day of the week" marks a new beginning, for Christ had finished His work of redemption, in relation to the Old Testament, as the Sabbath stood as a reminder of God's consummate work in the old creation (Genesis 2:3).

In verse 1, the supreme devotion of Mary Magdalene is brought to bear, for she never forgot the fact that Christ had delivered her from the oppression of being in bondage to Satan. She was not only seen at the cross, but the first at His grave. Her deep and abiding love is displayed, for she never forgot that Christ expelled seven demons from her (St. Luke 8:2). There is an amazing phenomenon that takes place in verse 1: "the stone had been taken from the sepulcher." According to Matthew 28:2, the stone had been removed by an angel; thus, this action proved that God had intervened.

Having perceived that the stone had been removed, Mary Magdalene tells Peter and John (v. 2). In her excitement, she tells others about her discovery! Now, anxious and excited, both disciples went to the sepulcher, with John outrunning Peter (vs. 3-4). In verse 5, we see the anxious expectation of the Apostle John; however, as he inspects, he doesn't immediately go into the sepulcher. On the other hand, as the curious Peter arrives, he goes into the sepulcher (v. 6). In verses 6 and 7, the Apostle John supplies us with ample and sufficient evidence that Christ was victorious over the grave, having left His grave clothes in the sepulcher! With all of the ample evidence at hand, John could only conclude that Christ had risen from the dead (v. 8).

Having heard Christ speak of His resurrection for three years, these disciples did not comprehend the message (v. 9). Having received an eyewitness account of the resurrection, the disciples went to their homes. These disciples went to their physical or earthly homes after receiving the grand message of Christ's resurrection. But, before we go to our heavenly home, we need to spread the message that "Christ lives today." And should someone ask us how we know He lives, we can confidently say - "He lives within my heart." Yes, He lives, oh yes, He lives!

To Be Equal: The Empowerment of Women

By NNPA Columnist Marc H. Morial

"So please ask yourself: What would I do if I weren't afraid? And then go do it." Sheryl Sandberg

In a stroke of marketing genius befitting the Chief Operating Officer of the social media phenomenon, Facebook, Sheryl Sandberg chose Women's History Month to launch her new book, Lean In, and begin a national dialogue about "Women, Work and the Will to Lead." Ruth Standish Baldwin was a co-founder of the National Urban League more than a century ago and the inclusion and empowerment of women has been one of our most important priorities. Today, Former Labor Secretary Alexis Herman serves as Senior Vice Chair on our Board, and almost half of our 95 local Affiliate CEOs are women. For that reason, we applaud Sandberg for her new book and are proud to join in the conversation.

We all know that historic barriers of gender discrimination, as well as the responsibilities of bearing and caring for children have made it more difficult for women to balance work and family. But Sandberg contends that women too often "hold ourselves back in ways big and small, by lacking self-confidence, by not raising our hands, and by pulling back when we should be leaning in." Lean In appears to be written by and for women for whom the path to executive leadership has always been a realistic, if somewhat difficult, journey. But the book has sparked another conversation in Black America about how women of color have always had to "lean in" to overcome the dual hurdles of racial and gender bias.

Consider how Harriet Tubman leaned into the face of death to lead a thousand slaves to freedom on the Underground Railroad. Or how Sojourner Truth stood up and boldly asked "Ain't I a woman?" at the 1851 Ohio Women's Rights Convention. Consider how Fannie Lou Hamer who was "sick and tired of being sick and tired," fought for African American voting rights as an organizer of the 1964 Mississippi Freedom Summer and Vice Chair of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party. Or how a quiet seamstress named Rosa Parks, leaned in, sat down on a bus and lit the fuse of the civil rights movement.

Decrying the lack of women at the top of corporate America, Sandberg does admit that, "The gap is even worse for women of color, who hold just 4 percent of top corporate jobs, 3 percent of board seats and 5 percent of congressional seats." But, with rising numbers of Black women in college, preparing themselves for successful careers, clearly a lack of drive or ambition is not the problem.

Lean In urges women to "Sit at the Table," "Seek and Speak Your Truth," "Don't Leave Before You Leave," and "Make Your Partner a Real Partner." These recommendations present a road map of success that has obviously worked for Sheryl Sandberg. But, it is largely the lack of support, the pressures of single parenthood, and systemic racial and gender discrimination that continue to keep women of color from getting a foot in the corporate door. The empowerment of all women depends on closing the wage gap, protecting women's reproductive rights, providing greater workplace flexibility, having more women in non-traditional professions like science and engineering, and supporting common sense measures such as the Violence Against Women Act which was recently reauthorized and signed into law by President Obama.

If men and women lean in together, we can foster gender equity and a better America.

Black Voters are Back in Style

By James Clingman NNPA Columnist

The push for the Black vote is on. Black folks are back in style. Black is beautiful – again. Since the last election, the mantra has become, "Get more 'minorities' to vote Republican" and Black voters are at the top of that list. Yes, they want to increase their Hispanic support, but the African American vote is ripe and ready to be harvested by just the right messenger. Wow, that sounds familiar. Don't Democrats have that same strategy? They trot out a couple of spokespersons to soothe us with convincing platitudes that have kept us in their corner for decades.

Now the Republican sleeping giant has finally awoken, and it is ready to do whatever it takes to regain Black voters' confidence and support. They have launched a new Black political role model into the limelight; he is an icon among Black people, a hero, Horatio Alger personified, and his name is Dr. Ben Carson. He was the darling of the Conservative Political Action Conference (CPAC) convention and is the new love of Sean Hannity's life. Fresh off his in-your-face, Mr. President, speech at the national prayer breakfast, Carson has decided to quit medicine and pursue "other" interests. The Republicans are already drafting him for the 2016 presidential race.

To rub salt into the wound, some Black commentators and columnists are suggesting that Black voters should seriously consider moving from the Democrat plantation to the Republican plantation, and the chairman of the Republican Party, Reince Priebus, has a plan to make that happen. So does Rand Paul. Both of them have said Republicans must get more Black people to remember what their party has done for us, and bring us back into their "big tent." Yes, we are definitely in vogue these days.

The question is: What are we going to do with our newfound popularity? When political parties compete for your votes, you win. I wonder what the Democrat response will be to this Republican incursion. After 75 years or so of unbroken Black voter loyalty, the battle lines have been drawn by Priebus, who has set out to do what Michael Steele could not do with "fried chicken and potato salad:" get more Black folks to vote Republican.

Why is it always an either/or choice between Black folks being a Republican or a Democrat? It seems to me that Black people, especially, should always be independent and willing to support either party if, of course, both parties address the interests and needs of Black people. Notwithstanding the opposing arguments regarding what Presidents Lincoln, Eisenhower, and Nixon did for Black people versus what Presidents Roosevelt, Kennedy, and Johnson did, we should base our voting on interests rather than parties. Our unique position and genesis in this country demand political independence rather than political allegiance to anyone or any party. It's all about reciprocity, and the last time I checked, Black people have yet to receive even a reasonable return on our investment in the U.S.

Our American experience is unique. No other group has committed so much to, worked so hard for, fought and died in wars for America, and received so little in return. Other groups did not go through what we went through, and our right to play in the political game was bought and paid for hundreds of years ago. However, this is still, above all, a capitalistic society, and economics rules the day. If we take care of business in the economics arena, the political arena will be easy pickings.

Heed the words of T. Thomas Fortune, a journalist and co-founder of the National Negro Business League: "No people ever became great and prosperous by devoting their infant energies to politics. We were literally born into political responsibility before we had mastered the economic conditions which underlie these duties."

His message is clear. We are not even in the political game because we do not use our political leverage to get what we say we need. All we get back from our "precious" votes is a good feeling, which could be characterized as having sex rather than making love. Black people are in love with our political party; and our party is just having sex with us.

We had better wake up from our infatuation with political parties, and understand that they only want us for one thing: our votes. Of course, they would also like our campaign donations, but we certainly aren't trying to hear that. Black people must be more politically independent, and stop letting the talking heads and so-called leaders, both Black and White, steer us toward one party over the other. We will be more politically effective if we leverage our votes with those who espouse and support our interests. If we can't do that then we should at least be present at both tables in large enough numbers to have a positive impact on each party's agenda. Right now, the reference to Black people being made by either major party is related to our votes, not our progress.

Remember: In politics there are no permanent friends and no permanent enemies, just permanent interests.

CAPRICORN

Avoid getting involved in any office politics or family feuds this week. The week's energy is excitable, but not necessarily exciting. Do your own thing and be proud of what you do. Let others do their own thing, so long as it doesn't hurt anyone.

Soul Affirmation: Money opens doors for friendship to enter.
 Lucky Numbers: 10, 29, 46

AQUARIUS

A message this week may necessitate travel on your part, and you may feel obligated to do something you don't want to. Let the energy flow past you and do what you think is best. Who you are is who you are—be glad about it!

Soul Affirmation: I fill my mind with visions of love this week.
 Lucky Numbers: 40, 47, 52

PISCES

You wake up feeling peaceful and wise. Discussions with a close friend may reveal the source of your inner freedom in a very tangible way. So talk about it. You've got everything good to gain.

Soul Affirmation: I let my mind go slack and tighten up my body
 Lucky Numbers: 33, 38, 41

How to Keep a Mighty Good Man!

I'm sure you've all heard the old adage that "a good man is hard to find." And with the way our men are being swallowed by the prison system and dropping like flies, I couldn't agree more. So when you do come across a good one, the smart thing to do is to put those clanks on 'em—lock him down and make it so he doesn't want to be set free. How? The following tips will make him feel appreciated and will help you keep your old man by your side.

- 1. Take Care of Home
To some of you, it may sound 1950-ish, but making sure everything is in order around your home is one of the key elements to keeping a good man. Nothing screams wife material more than a woman who feeds her man when he's hungry, can pay a few bills (if necessary), takes care of the kids—if you have any—and keeps the house tidy (even if you don't live together, keeping your own apartment clean will show him that you have the ability to maintain a home).
- 2. Let Him Be the Boss
We all know that behind closed doors, women are running things. But don't ever make him feel like he's less than a man, especially in public. That's a big no-no. Follow his lead, let him call the shots, but once you get back home, well, you know what's up.

- 3. Be Supportive
Men pride themselves on their accomplishments, money, and their ability to provide. So anything that correlates to the three, you better believe he holds it dear. Whether it's dreams of building his own auto shop, or getting a promotion at the job, make sure that you encourage him to do his best, assist him in attaining his goals, and support him in everything he chooses to do.
- 4. Give Him Space
Every once in a while, he may want to spend the night out with his boys or invest in a little alone time without any interruptions or distractions. Respect that. Just like us, men like to be by themselves sometimes. Don't take it personally. Give him his space and when he's ready, he'll come right back.
- 5. Take Care of Yourself

Always make sure your nails are done, hair is on point and that you're "dressed to kill" or as some may call it, "dressed to the nines". Remember, we live in a world where women outnumber our male counterparts, so you should never give your man a reason to be embarrassed about showing you off or taking you out.

- 6. Try Not to Nag, At Least Not Too Much
I know it's hard ladies, but if and when he messes up—especially if it's something small—don't go on and on and on and on and on and on. Make your point and let it go.
- 7. Be Happy with Yourself
Only insecure men go after women with no morals, goals, ambition or confidence. But if you've hooked a real one, I'm sure he'd prefer you to have your life on track so that he can avoid unnecessary headaches and drama.
Before you can be happy with someone else, you first have to get your life in order and be happy with yourself.

FBI looks at cruise ship death out of Baltimore
(AP) -- Royal Caribbean says the FBI is investigating a death aboard one of its cruise ships.

The Enchantment of the Seas returned to Baltimore as scheduled Monday after a 62-year-old woman was found dead in her cabin Sunday.

Royal Caribbean Cruises Ltd. says in a statement that it contacted the FBI and local police as part of standard procedures, and FBI agents boarded the ship when it arrived in Baltimore.

The woman's name and hometown were not released, although Royal Caribbean says she was American. The company says her husband found her dead. The Enchantment of the Seas sailed to Florida and the Bahamas on a seven-night trip.

AP source: Obama to name woman Secret Service head

(AP) - President Obama appointed Julia Pierson as head of the Secret Service -- the first female director of the agency. A White House official said, signaling his [Obama's] desire to change the culture at the male-dominated service, which has been marred by scandal.

Pierson, who most recently served as Secret Service chief of staff, will take over the top job from Mark Sullivan, who announced his retirement last month. The agency faced intense criticism during Sullivan's tenure for a prostitution scandal during preparations for Obama's trip to Cartagena, Colombia, last year.

(AP) - El presidente Obama nombró a Julia Pierson como jefe del Servicio Secreto - la primera directora de la agencia. Un funcionario de la Casa Blanca dijo, señalando su deseo [de Obama] para cambiar la cultura al servicio dominado por los hombres, que se ha visto empañado por el escándalo.

Pierson, quien recientemente se desempeñó como jefe del Servicio Secreto de personal, asumirá el cargo más alto de Mark Sullivan, quien anunció su retiro el mes pasado. La agencia enfrentó fuertes críticas durante el mandato de Sullivan por un escándalo de prostitución durante los preparativos para el viaje de Obama a Cartagena, Colombia, el año pasado.

Tiger Woods, who has spent 623 weeks at No. 1 in the world, will return to the top spot for the first time in 29 months after his victory Monday in the Arnold Palmer Invitational at Bay Hill.

"I think it's been years since I've hit the ball this consistently day in and day out," Woods said.

Woods held off Rickie Fowler and Justin Rose in the continuation of the final round, which was halted Sunday when wind, rain and lightning forced a suspension of play. Woods and Fowler had played two holes Sunday, and Woods led by three shots when they teed off at No. 3 on Monday.

Fowler applied some pressure on the back nine, until he knocked two balls in the water on the par-5 16h on his way to a triple bogey.

Woods, not as sharp as he had been in the first three rounds, finished with a final-round 2-under 70, 13 under par and two shots better than Rose.

"By-product of hard work, patience, and getting back to winning golf tournaments," Woods said about his return to the top of the rankings.

Woods' girlfriend, world-champion skier Lindsey Vonn, tweeted congratulations moments after the victory.

Brittney Griner Has 3 Dunks, Baylor Women Rout Florida State In Women's NCAA Tournament

(AP) - Brittney Griner certainly knows how to provide a farewell to remember - and an embrace Baylor coach Kim Mulkey will likely never forget.

There were three impressive dunks on a night Griner almost could have had more in her final home game.

"Tonight felt like senior night. Tonight was better," Griner said. "The three dunks. Just going out the way we did. Not everybody's lucky, and we were. We gave the crowd a good game."

Griner had 33 points and a career-high 22 rebounds, becoming the first woman to make three dunks in a game, as the defending national champion Lady Bears rolled past Florida State 85-47 Tuesday night in the second round of the NCAA tournament.

With former President George W. Bush part of the crowd packed into the Ferrell Center for the final home game of Griner's impressive career and four other seniors, the 6-foot-8 two-time All-American delivered in spectacular fashion - with one dunk before halftime and two more in a 79-second span right before coming out of the game for good.

"It's always exciting to see when Brittney dunks. I always get excited. We always get excited," junior

Baylor's Brittney Griner dunks as Jordan Madden (3), Niya Johnson (2), Destiny Williams (10) and Alexis Prince (12) watch with Florida State's Natasha Howard (33) and Chasity Clayton (00) during the second half of a second-round game in the women's NCAA college basketball tournament, Tuesday, March 26, 2013, in Waco, Texas. (AP Photo/Tony Gutierrez) point guard Odyssey Sims said. "Everyone gets pumped. It's nothing we've never seen. She's just phenomenal."

Brooklyn Pope had 12 points for Baylor, which has won a nation's-best 57 games in a row at home. Sims had 11 points and Kimetria Hayden 10.

The Lady Bears (34-1) are in the NCAA round of 16 for the fourth year in a row. They play Louisville (26-8) on Sunday night in Oklahoma City.

When the game was over, Griner again held both arms in the air. She took a couple of laps around the arena floor, with Baylor cheerleaders following her, then jumped onto the back of Shanay

Washington for a piggy-back ride before then returning the favor to her close friend and former teammate whose career ended early because of multiple knee injuries.

Since the senior trio of Griner, Kimetria Hayden and Jordan Madden got to Waco as freshmen together, Baylor is 71-2 at home. Griner has played in only one loss since she didn't participate in the last home loss, against Texas in the 2009-10 regular-season finale.

The Lady Bears have won every home game the past three seasons - since Sims arrived and when transfers Destiny Williams and Pope, the other seniors, started playing.

My Day: No Negro

BY MRS. ESTER DAVIS, EDTV

What would Marcus Garvey, founder of Universal Negro Improvement Association, say about the Census Bureau dropping the word "Negro" from the census forms? Do you think Mary McCloud Bethune, founder of the National Council of Negro Women (NCNW), would make a statement? Is this an insult to the Negro Airmen Association, that was grown and enhanced by the hundreds of trained Tuskegee Airmen? A few of these heros are still living? The term 'Negro' was first used in the census in 1900. Most of these original organization that made us stronger, were already in existence. The Negro Baptist Church was organized in 1773. Talk about history. The National Negro Business League had thousands of members before integration as did the National Negro Baseball League. So, my simple question is because we became 'black' and 'African Americans', we should allow the 'Negro' to evaporate? What is the new term for 'n-town'?

The change will take effect next year when the Census Bureau distributes to more than 3.5 million households the annual American Community Survey. I must inform you that the Census Bureau has a bureau chief of racial statistics. This branch of the Census has conducted months of public feedback and research determining the view of the term. If you participated, I would appreciate a call, which I will leave at the end of this article. The conclusion of the surveys was that the term was outdated and offensive. You see 'Negro' itself took the place of 'colored'. And then, I repeat, 'black' -to-African Americans. Which means, at this point, the 'n' word should be fired. Nicholas Jones, Bureau Chief of Racial Statistics, and Matthew Snipp, professor at Stanford University, continues with "this is a reflection of changing times, changing vocabularies and changing understandings of what race means in this country". Personally, I find this unacceptable. I am certain there was a more capable source at the National Urban League headquarters, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), the United Negro College Fund (UNCF) or a qualified professor of African Studies at several ivy league universities and historically black colleges in America.

DALLAS MAYOR'S INTERN FELLOWS PROGRAM

Driven by the belief that students from Dallas' public high schools "must make the connection between a good education and a great career," Dallas Mayor Mike Rawlings kicked off the Dallas Mayor's Intern Fellows Program asking Dallas businesses of every size to step up and provide summer internships for Dallas public high school students. Joined by dozens of business and nonprofit leaders, Mayor Rawlings announced the challenge at a news conference held recently at Dallas City Hall.

"The Mayor's Intern Fellows Program is much more than a summer job; it's an eye-opening and often life-changing opportunity for Dallas public high school students," said Mayor Rawlings. "This summer program is truly important because this investment in our youth strengthens our education system, our city and its economy, and the workforce of tomorrow." Founded in 2008, the Mayor's Intern Fellows Program is an eight-week paid summer internship program that introduces high school students to careers and employment opportunities in industries and companies where they have expressed interest. The students - rising juniors and seniors from Dallas ISD and public charter high schools - get exposure to a variety of fields, including technology, healthcare, law, accounting, business, education, the nonprofit sector, advertising/marketing/public relations, engineering, banking, manufacturing and hospitality.

Modeled after the prestigious White House Fellows Program, the Intern Fellows Program prepares motivated teens to become the leaders of tomorrow. Since its inception six years ago, 513 Dallas ISD and public charter high school students have participated in the internships made possible by hundreds of businesses and nonprofits.

Darling International is underwriting the "Business 101 Training Program" that all students will undergo in preparation for their job interviews, which will include resume building, interviewing, proper dress, career choices, corporate climate, and financial literacy. Highland Capital Management is sponsor of the Job Fair set for May 3, where students will be interviewed by human resource professionals and receive formal job offers. As the Community Service Sponsor, Tenet Healthcare will underwrite the events where interns will volunteer at either the North Texas Food Bank or Community Partners of Dallas. Program sponsors are Atmos Energy, Dallas Citizens Council and Kroger. Additionally, Kroger is providing breakfast, lunch and snacks for all three "Business 101" trainings, the Downtown Business News is helping spread the word to its readers, and Central Market is providing food for Computer Training Day. Donors to the program are Linda and Mitch Hart; Al G. Hill, Jr.; Erle Nye; Margot and Ross Perot; Vin and Caren Prothro Foundation; Sewell Automotive Companies; and Harold Simmons.

The Mayor's Intern Fellow's Program is facilitated by Dallas nonprofit Education is Freedom (EIF), a comprehensive college-planning program offering a dedicated team of school-based experts who offer college-access programming in numerous Dallas ISD high schools. Employers are asked to provide at least one eight-week summer internship for a student fellow for 20 to 40 hours weekly, pay the interns the recommended minimum rate of $9 per hour, and pay a program fee per intern, which covers the intern's participation in "Business 101" training, Job Fair, Microsoft Office computer training, leadership development training and Community Service Day. The eight-week internships will begin June 17 and concludes with the Mayor's Intern Fellows Program celebratory luncheon on Friday, August 9.

Businesses also are asked to provide students an opportunity for job shadowing of executives and to observe a company's operations. Probably one of the most important aspects is to set up one-on-one conversations with managers and executives regarding college and career prospects and to share information about the company's industry and variety of career options.

If a company cannot provide an intern at their business, they may underwrite an intern to work at a local nonprofit agency or be a program sponsor.

Businesses and organizations that have responded to the Mayor's call for the first time include Action Metals; Ambient Energy; American Airlines Center (Arena Operating Co.); Atmos Energy; Big City Crushed Concrete; Brook Partners; Central Market; Darling International Inc.; Dieste; Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas; Good Fulton & Farrell; Halff Associates; HDR; Hewlett-Packard; Hyatt Regency Dallas; ISNetwork; Jacobs Engineering; Jones Lange LaSalle; Kroger; Laurey Peat & Associates; LegacyTexas Bank; Locke Lord LLP; McKool Smith; Methodist Health System (MDMC); MoneyGram International; PepsiCo; Sammons Enterprises, Inc.; Southern Methodist University; Susan G. Komen - Dallas County Affiliate; Tenet Healthcare;

Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Children; URS Corporation; USI Southwest; Weil, Gotshal & Manges LLP; Winstead PC; Yellow Cab; and Zix Corporation.

Businesses and nonprofit organizations that have employed or funded interns in the past and are back supporting the program include Alliance Data; ALON USA; Ansira Engagement Marketing; AT&T; Balfour Beatty Construction; Bank of America; Baylor Healthcare System; Brinker International; CH2M HILL; Children's Medical Center; Clay Stapp & Company; Comerica Bank; Corinth Properties; Cornerstone Healthcare Group; Dal Tile; Dallas Convention & Visitors Bureau; Dallas Convention Center; Dallas Mavericks; Dave and Busters; Dean Foods; Deloitte; Eastfield College; Energy Future Holdings; Ernst & Young LLP; Exigo; FirstSouthwest Company; Frontera; Gardere Wynne Sewell LLP; Gold Metal Recyclers; Gruber Hurst Johansen Hail Shank LLP; Highland Capital Management; HKS, Inc.; HNTB Corporation; Hunt Consolidated Inc.; INSPIRE; Jones Day; JP Morgan Chase; Jubilee Park and Community Center; Kimberly-Clark Corporation; Omni Hotels & Resorts; Oncor; ORIX Foundation; Parkland Health & Hospital System; PWC (Pricewaterhouse Coopers LLP); Ryan LLC; SCHMIDT & STACY Consulting Engineers, Inc.; SCM Real Estate Services; Southcross Energy; Southwest Airlines; Texas Health Partners; Texas Instruments; Texas Rangers Baseball Club; The Beck Group; The Sheraton Hotel Dallas; The University of North Texas at Dallas; The Williams Family Foundation; TravisWolff; Trinity Industries; United Surgical Partners International Inc.; University of North Texas System; University of Texas at Dallas; Uplift Education; UT Southwestern Medical Center; Weber Shandwick; and Wells Fargo.

The deadline for companies to sign up is April 18. In early May, human resource professionals from participating companies will interview students at a real-life job fair to be held May 3 at the Morton H. Meyerson Symphony Center. The program is open to students 16 and older who are sophomores or juniors at any Dallas public or charter high school who are eligible to work in the U.S. during summer 2013. Students must have a minimum 3.0 GPA, a solid attendance record, and a recommendation from campus leadership. They must also participate in at least one full day of training prior to beginning their internships.

STUDENTS PREPARE FOR STAAR WITH STRESS BALLS
 Unique donation for students testing success

As thousands of district students prepare to take the upcoming STAAR exam, Urban Park Elementary School is preparing their students with a special motivational rally during which stress-relieving squeeze balls shaped like an apple will be given to each student. The event takes place Monday

April 1, 2:15 p.m. at 6901 Military Parkway, and will feature the Skyline High School band and cheerleaders.

The stress apples are a donation from AXA Retirement Benefits Group. Many children suffer from testing anxiety which can include symptoms such as nervousness, headaches, upset stomachs and even the feeling of fainting. Having stress balls at hand helps ease the discomfort and release the building tension so that students may be able to focus.

AXA sponsors and is active in many of the district's volunteer opportunities such as school field days, career days, and district literacy initiatives.
